Bulletin said: "Gen. Eisenhower's condition remains essentially unchanged. He continues to have brief episodes of irregular heart action from time to time. He is resting comfortably and enjoys brief visits from members of the immediate family."

The family members were not identified. But Eisenhower's wife, Mamie, has been living at the hospital for the past few weeks and sleeps in a room near his.

Richard M. Nixon, Eisenhower's former vice president who is now the Republican presidential candidate, visited the hospital Tuesday and conferred with Eisenhower's doctors and mem-

U.S. STRENGTH

Russian threats against Czechoslovakia this summer could be summed up in this sentence: "Leave us out; we have enough problems of our own."

The United States has no military commitment to Czechoslovakia, nor does it have even an implied moral commitment to that Communist country which in the past has been as hostile to the United States as any other East European Communist state.

American officers who have assessed the relative military strength of Czechoslovakia and its Communist neighbors have felt it would be suicide for the Czechs to resist if invaded by Russia and other Warsaw Pact armies.

This realization also may have prompted the Czech leadership to caution its people against resisting.

According to recent estimates, a Czech army of some 175,000 men in 14 divisions faces overwhelming Russian, East German, Polish and other Communist force.

The Russian army has some 20 divisions in East Germany, plus four in Hungary and two in Poland. The Russians have based about 900 tactical planes in East Germany alone.

The East German army numbers some 93,000 men in six divisions, the Polish army some 185,000 men in 16 divisions.

In all, Czechoslovakia could send aloft only about 600 fighter planes, most of them old model Russian-built MIGs.

Developments in Czechoslovakia may blunt efforts of some key U.S. senators to reduce U.S. forces in Germany even further.

Although the U.S. military chiefs have no wish to get into the Communist wrangle, they also have no wish to reduce U.S. strength in Germany.

A year ago, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told Congress that he and his colleagues felt "there is no military justification for reduction of military forces in Central Europe."

The outflow of American armed strength along the Iron Curtain was ordered into effect nonetheless, and is now well along.

The reduction involves about 28,000 army men and about 5,000 Air Force troops.

Technically, these units are tethered to U.S. forces in Europe—that is, they are supposed to remain committed to the North Atlantic Alliance and "in a high degree of readiness" to return to Europe if needed.

There was no immediate sign that the reduction would be reversed in the light of the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Being brought home are two brigades of the 24th Infantry Division, a tank regiment, an artillery group and other units, together with four fighter squadrons.

Members of the family, including the general's son, John,

Nixon emerged from the 45-minute visit to describe Eisenhower's battle to survive as courageous.

"His chances for recovery are certainly not to be underestimated, despite his critical condition," Nixon said.

Nixon did not see Eisenhower because, the former vice president explained, "anything in the political field at this time would excite him."

But Nixon said the general's will to live "cannot be discounted."

"The thing that was most encouraging to me," Nixon said, "was that the general's spirit is so outstanding."

were hit by mortar shells during attacks on the big Soc Trang airfield, 100 miles south of Saigon, and on the Vinh Long airbase, 75 miles below the capital.

The enemy followed the mortar attacks with six ground assaults against allied outposts but contact was broken off by early morning. Initial reports claimed 12 enemy killed, but the final toll was expected to run higher.

On the allied side, the delta attacks killed one U.S. civilian and wounded 12 others. Four South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and 27 wounded. South Vietnamese civilian casualties were put at nine dead, including five children, and 41 wounded.

In the foothills of the central highlands, more than 200 enemy troops stormed U.S. and South Vietnamese artillery positions after hitting them with a mortar barrage. Two companies of South Vietnamese militiamen and a platoon of paratroopers from the U.S. 173rd Airborne Brigade backed by artillery and dive-bombers repelled the attack after five hours of fighting.

Thirty enemy troops were reported killed. South Vietnamese casualties were 10 killed and 23 wounded. American losses were put at three dead and 12 wounded. Six Vietnamese civilians also were reported wounded.

Enemy troops also attacked the U.S. Air Force base at Phan Rang, 160 miles northeast of Saigon, today with mortar and small arms fire. U.S. casualties and damage to the base were termed light.

Enemy troops slammed about 50 mortar rounds into a U.S. base camp 18 miles east of Tay Ninh, near the Cambodian border, where the heaviest fighting in the latest offensive started Sunday. Casualties and damage were reported light.

Foundry IsStruck at Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Local 1091 of the United Auto Workers Union struck the Arkansas Foundry Co. here Tuesday.

The union's contract expired Aug. 12, but employees had been reporting for work on a daily basis. The union said the company had rejected its contract proposal Aug. 12 and no negotiations had been held since.

The union voted July 13 to strike if necessary after rejecting an AFCC offer of a 44.8 cent hourly wage increase over a three-year period.

The present company offer is an immediate 24 cent increase with a 10 cent increase the second year and 11 cents the third year.

The union is asking an immediate raise of nine cents over the company's offer in some labor grades and 14 cents in others, with an additional 20 cents over the company's offer for all labor grades the second year and an additional 21 cents over the company's offer for the third year.

The union also wants a plant-side seniority system, a shorter probationary period for new employees, two more paid vacations and more insurance benefits.

Military, diplomatic and intelligence officials—reviewed available information.

Johnson then directed Secretary of State Dean Rusk to summon Dobrynin to a late-night meeting at the State Department "to discuss the matter further."

Rusk and the ambassador subsequently met for about 10 minutes. No account of the meeting was given. Also present were George W. Ball, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, and John Leddy, assistant secretary of state for European affairs.

In addition to his early hours meeting with Humphrey, Johnson kept in close contact with other key officials.

The move against the Czechs by hard-line Communists fearful of the reform regime in Prague caught the Pentagon by surprise. Officials said they knew of no special alert for the U.S. Army, in West Germany, 200,000 strong.

SOVIET ACTION

of our present military effort. All took the position that the conflict in Vietnam is primarily political rather than military and we cannot prevail by military means alone.

"Witnesses overwhelmingly called for an immediate bombing halt in all of Vietnam, to further the chances for success in the current negotiations."

"Characterization of the war ranged from futile and unwinnable to unjust and deleterious to our moral climate here at home."

One of the principal shapers of a proposed end-of-the-war plank, John J. Gilligan of Ohio, said such evidence of sentiment tends to offset the arguments of the State Department, "which Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey apparently shares, although he has not stated his position."

"They are saying 'just trust us, be for peace, but don't fence us in,'" Gilligan said in an interview. "That may be a good Texas folk song, but it doesn't do the job."

Gilligan and his associates acknowledged the Czech crisis makes their chosen job no easier, but they claimed to find some advantage in it for their side.

They began to push a new argument: That the heavy commitment of men and materials in Vietnam hampers the United States' reaction to crises elsewhere.

The news that Warsaw Pact troops had crossed the Czech frontier broke dramatically at a platform hearing Tuesday night just as Secretary of State Dean Rusk was completing the administration's major defense of its Southeast Asia policy.

Rusk bore down hard on two contentions. Abandoning collective security in Asia by withdrawing would be "an invitation to disaster" and a political commitment to disaster.

"In spite of its distinguished membership," is no place to write detailed instructions to diplomatic negotiators.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, who visited the committee but did not stay for Rusk's testimony told newsmen the secretary's appearance amounted to "a voice from the past."

Fgn. AffairsPosture to Be Hardened

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — At a sensitive moment in American politics, the Soviet Union's troop thrust into Czechoslovakia is likely to harden the foreign affairs posture of Democrats convening in Chicago and of the Republican party as well.

Among Democrats, the crisis in eastern Europe probably will assist Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, who already is the commanding leader for the presidential nomination to be awarded at the party's national convention next week.

His chief rival, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, is banking heavily on a convention battle over Vietnam war policy to bolster his bid to overtake Humphrey.

But echoes of the European crisis undoubtedly will make the task of Democratic doves far more difficult. For the convention is not likely to adopt a conciliatory plank on dealing with the Communists in Vietnam while Communist troops in Europe are on the march.

The movement by Soviet, Polish, East German, Hungarian and Bulgarian troops came after weeks of tension over internal liberalization of the Czech Communist regime. The trend represented a break with old-line communism.

The Soviet government said its troops moved at the request of Czechoslovakia to meet a threat to the Socialist system.

While the situation was not clear, its impact on the Democratic platform hearings under way in Washington could only be one of stiffening attitudes toward the Communist world.

MOUSER REUNION

The annual reunion was held Sunday, August 18th to honor the memory of "George and Phoebe Best Mouser", their ancestors, and the succeeding generations to our present generation. The Mouser Family settled in Hempstead County, Arkansas in 1826 coming here from Americus, Missouri.

There was a Salute written in the form of an "Open Book" to the memory of the Mouser - Best ancestors. A page from the "Open Book" was a welcome to the new babies. Also from the "Open Book" was a Memorial for three of the Families lost in death.
An interesting display was shown of old documents and relics of the Family, collected from Memoirs of our forebears. There was a chart showing the Family Tree to the fifth generation of George and Phoebe Best Mouser.

Faye Hood Shuman gave a Genealogy study report of her research on the Mouser-Best ancestral descent. She welcomed each member of the Mouser - Best ancestry on this memorable day and dedicated it to, "A day of looking ahead by looking back."

Fred Mouser introduced the families represented. Others who spoke were: Mr. Alfred C. Stewart, Dallas, Texas; Mrs. Althea Beauchamp, Weatherford, Texas; Mrs. Roy Mouser, Hope and Mr. Imen Beauchamp, Weatherford, Texas.

Those attending from out of town were: Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. WORKING WIVES SOCIAL SECURITY STIRS UP HORNET'S NEST

Dear Helen: Regarding the proposed change in social security laws to help give working wives a bigger break: I'm against it! What married female workers do not realize is that, by taking employment, they forfeit the PRIVILEGE of being "carried" by the rest of the taxpayers; they CHOOSE to act as single people; they do not relinquish anything that is due them upon retiring. One pension per person is all that is due! The stay-at-homes receive one-half of their husband's benefits for the reason that they are presumably too busy maintaining families to the benefit of the country in general to be otherwise occupied. The complaining "working wives" who want this allowance PLUS their earned pensions apparently want "egg in their beer."

To pay for "egg," working people would have to pay a higher tax. Or has someone figured out just how these payments are to be financed without a tax hike? The SINGLE taxpayer gets it in the neck! Talk about discrimination!

Just an added thought with half tongue in cheek: one of these days some kook is likely to come up with the idea of paying a bonus to single people for not cluttering up the world with progeny. With all the talk about over population, it's something to think about!—E.M.B.

Dear E: Representative Edward Patten's bill (H.R. 17532, now in committee) does NOT provide a double pension for working wives. In his words, it "would amend the present law and thus provide the payment of benefits to a married couple based on their combined earnings record where that method would produce a higher combined benefit." Now really, isn't that fair?—H.

Dear Helen: Ten of us working wives have written letters to our Congressmen urging consideration of H.R. Bill 17532. It may not be the complete answer, but it's a start, and only the combined efforts of many, many W.W.'s will keep it from dying in committee.

I urge all women interested to write their Congressmen today—right now, before you forget! A flood of letters will prove again that when women want change they aren't afraid to fight City Hall.

We repeat: It isn't fair that a woman must forfeit her rights as a wife if she takes her pension as a worker; or, if she takes her wife's allowance, then her years of paycheck deductions have gone down the drain.—E.P.

Dear Helen: In our letters to our Congressmen we made an additional request. We asked that should the wife die first her husband benefit from HER Social Security. As the law stands now, no one collects on her benefits if she dies. Doesn't seem right, does it?—MRS. D.M.K.

To pay for "egg," working people would have to pay a higher tax. Or has someone figured out just how these payments are to be financed without a tax hike? The SINGLE taxpayer gets it in the neck! Talk about discrimination!

Just an added thought with half tongue in cheek: one of these days some kook is likely to come up with the idea of paying a bonus to single people for not cluttering up the world with progeny. With all the talk about over population, it's something to think about!—E.M.B.

Dear E: Representative Edward Patten's bill (H.R. 17532, now in committee) does NOT provide a double pension for working wives. In his words, it "would amend the present law and thus provide the payment of benefits to a married couple based on their combined earnings record where that method would produce a higher combined benefit." Now really, isn't that fair?—H.

Dear Helen: Ten of us working wives have written letters to our Congressmen urging consideration of H.R. Bill 17532. It may not be the complete answer, but it's a start, and only the combined efforts of many, many W.W.'s will keep it from dying in committee.

I urge all women interested to write their Congressmen today—right now, before you forget! A flood of letters will prove again that when women want change they aren't afraid to fight City Hall.

We repeat: It isn't fair that a woman must forfeit her rights as a wife if she takes her pension as a worker; or, if she takes her wife's allowance, then her years of paycheck deductions have gone down the drain.—E.P.

Dear Helen: In our letters to our Congressmen we made an additional request. We asked that should the wife die first her husband benefit from HER Social Security. As the law stands now, no one collects on her benefits if she dies. Doesn't seem right, does it?—MRS. D.M.K.

WORKING WIVES SOCIAL SECURITY STIRS UP HORNET'S NEST

Dear Helen: Regarding the proposed change in social security laws to help give working wives a bigger break: I'm against it! What married female workers do not realize is that, by taking employment, they forfeit the PRIVILEGE of being "carried" by the rest of the taxpayers; they CHOOSE to act as single people; they do not relinquish anything that is due them upon retiring. One pension per person is all that is due! The stay-at-homes receive one-half of their husband's benefits for the reason that they are presumably too busy maintaining families to the benefit of the country in general to be otherwise occupied. The complaining "working wives" who want this allowance PLUS their earned pensions apparently want "egg in their beer."

To pay for "egg," working people would have to pay a higher tax. Or has someone figured out just how these payments are to be financed without a tax hike? The SINGLE taxpayer gets it in the neck! Talk about discrimination!

Just an added thought with half tongue in cheek: one of these days some kook is likely to come up with the idea of paying a bonus to single people for not cluttering up the world with progeny. With all the talk about over population, it's something to think about!—E.M.B.

Bob Thomas at the Movies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When he was 18, Jim Webb flunked a college music course, broke up with his girl, got on an airplane and wrote "By the Time I Get to Phoenix."

At 19 he rode skyward in a balloon for a publicity stunt and wrote "Up, Up and Away."

Now 21, the composer prodigy of pop music needs no balloons or airplanes. His "MacArthur Park" is at the top of the charts and Jim Webb's career is soaring.

He has been signed to write the score for the film musical of "Peter Pan." Nearly completed is a second album of songs for actor Richard Harris whose first Webb album, "A Tramp Shining," was a runaway success. Frank Sinatra, among others, has asked for some Webb songs. Taping has begun on a television special, "Jim Webb and His Friends. And on his latest single record, "One of the Nicer Things," Jim Webb—composer and lyricist—makes his singing debut.

It's been a fast and dizzying ascent for the kid who came out of Oklahoma in 1964 knowing he had to write songs: "There was a time in my life when, as a matter of body chemistry, I wrote three songs a week."

Jim came to San Bernardino, a desert town 60 miles from Hollywood, when his father, a Baptist minister, was assigned to the parish there. Then Jim's mother died, and his father decided to go back to Oklahoma. Jim, then 18 and enrolled in college, remained.

Things did not go well. His grades were poor, and the academic regimen appeared to be hindering rather than helping him. A professor suggested that Jim take his talent to Hollywood.

He broke up with his girl, made a brief visit to Oklahoma, and on that auspicious flight home wrote the song that cata-pulted him to success.

At first he lived in a bare Hollywood apartment, sleeping on a blanket on the floor. Then "By the Time I Get to Phoenix" was recorded. It did well, but not as well as the song that followed: "Up, Up and Away." An airline eventually bought the song of a commercial. Jim Webb started making money.

He leased a huge, tree-shaded old house just off Hollywood Boulevard where he lives with an entourage of friends, musicians and his business manager.

Articulate and soft-spoken, still with an Oklahoma drawl, Webb seems the calm center of this whirlwind success.

"I try to keep my mind on my work and write like I always wrote."

He sits in an upstairs room surrounded by electronic equipment—tape recorders, an organ, a playback machine, an electric typewriter.

"Sometimes I look at all this equipment and I think of guys like Mozart who had only a quill pen and maybe some rough paper."

Webb, with his musical poems and long, long songs, says: "I've always resented being confined in the 32-bar song—writing something that runs three minutes because someone wants to sell tomato ketchup."

His song "MacArthur Park" runs over seven minutes, the longest playing single ever to hit the charts.

"We are trying to go forward musically," he says, "to incorporate the poetic style of the balladeers into a good solid top 40 track sound. 'MacArthur Park' was a start."

Diamonds Get a Punter

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas Diamond Coach Tom Burke announced Tuesday that Woody Safrir of the San Francisco 49ers will join the Diamonds.

Burke said the 49ers felt Safrir, a split-end and punter, needed game experience.

Safrir, who played for North Carolina, had a 44.6 punting average last year in the Canadian League.

runs with a double and a sacrifice fly and Danny Coombs extinguished a ninth-inning Dodger rally, preserving Dierker's sixth consecutive victory.

Cookie Rojas and Clay Dalrymple hit home runs and the Phillies clawed the Cardinals, ending Nelson Briles' five-game winning streak.

Briles retired the first two batters in the first inning and then two walks, four hits and an error cost him four runs. Rich Allen doubled one across and singles by Bill White and Gary Sutherland produced two of the others.

Rojas hit a solo homer in the second and Dalrymple connected with one man on in the third. Matty Alou tagged three hits, drove in two runs and scored a pair as Pittsburgh ended Cincinnati's seven-game winning streak.

Alou's three hits boosted his average to .333, 10 points behind NL leader Pete Rose, who had 1-for-4. Rose's ninth-inning triple extended his batting streak to 10 games.

Bill Mazeroski drove in three Pirate runs with a single and a triple and Tony Perez had a two-run homer for the Reds.

Willie Smith's second home run of the game gave Chicago its 10-inning victory over Atlanta. Smith, who had a three-run shot in the first inning, connected with two out in the 10th after the Cubs had tied the game on a pair of errors and Glenn Beckert's sacrifice fly in the ninth.

Pitcher Phil Niekro had a three-run homer for the Braves and his kid brother, Joe, was Chicago's winning pitcher in relief.

AFL WEST: Oakland Raiders

Johnny Rauch

OFFENSE

PROSPECTUS—This is a championship team that hasn't been satisfied by success, so coach Johnny Rauch shouldn't have any trouble getting them up again. "We're basically the same team as last year," he says, "with no major changes in the line-up. Only thing is, the extent of the recoveries of Tom Keating and Clem Daniels could make a big difference to the club, either way." Raiders still lack the big bomb threat, and Rauch admits he'd like to have track stars "like everybody else." But foremost he wants football players, and he has them. PREDICTION—First in West.

PASSING—If Darryl Lamonica could take a team to the Super Bowl in just one year under fire, think what he might do in two. He was the AFL Player of Year and he's just learning the ropes in Oakland. Even old Cotton Davidson looks good these days. Rating—A.

RECEIVING—Got the job done a year ago with Bill Miller, Fred Biletnikoff in outside spots, Billy Cannon at tight end. None will ever be accused of being Road Runner in disguise. But they have savvy, and if speed is required, Warren Wells might be the man to supply it. Top draftee Eldridge Dickey, an outstanding athlete, also is being used as flanker. Rating—B.

RUNNING—Actually, Herwig Dixon's as valuable for his receiving, at fullback, as he is for his running. Either way, he's the reliable man of the offense. If Clem Daniels comes all the way back from broken leg, the pressure on enemy defenses increases. But Raiders also know Pete Banaszak is hard-nosed stand-in. And maturing Larry Todd could be the big surprise. Rating—B+.

LINE—Best young front wall in business and should be getting better. Tackles Harry Schuh, Bob Siviuk and guard Gene Upshaw are all potential all-pros. Center Jim Otto, guard Wayne Hawkins have already made it in past. Pushing latter two are Dave Behrman, Jim Harvey. Of them all, Upshaw has greatest chance to be all-world. Rating—A.

DEFENSE

LINE—Ends Ben Davidson, Ike Lositter, tackles Tom Keating, Don Birdwell are getting feel of working as unit. Lots of size on the flanks and mobility in the middle. Keating is most active lineman in league; Birdwell's generally underrated. There's big dropoff, though, when any of them is sidelined. Rating—B+.

LINEBACKING—Characterized by eagerness. Middle man Don Connors, who emerged as All-AFL choice, corner backers Gus Otto, Bill Losky are all energetic hustlers. They're still young enough to be suckered at times, but they also have the physical drive to compensate for occasional mistakes. They're improving all the time. Rating—B+.

SECONDARY—Almost impossible for rookie to break in. Keat McCloughan, Willie Brown are best pair of corner backs in AFL, maybe all of football. Merry scrap for starting jobs at safety, with Rodger Bird pushing Warren Powers on strong side, Dave Grayson tussling Howard Williams as free safety. No worries anywhere. Rating—A.

KICKING—Old George Blanda keeps pumping that right leg forever and setting records every time he kicks a point. Mike Eischeid is dependable as punter. Rating—A.

McLain Fails in Bid for Number 26

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

A strong young arm has put some zip into Detroit's pennant push. But the Tigers would be a lot happier today if it belonged to Denny McLain.

John Hillier, a second-year southpaw who hadn't been to the winner's circle in two months, pitched a one-hitter Tuesday night as the American League leaders whipped Chicago 7-0 in the opener of a doubleheader.

The White Sox then kayoed arm-weary McLain, Detroit's brilliant 25-game winner, with a nine-run blitz in taking the nightcap 10-2. The setback ended a seven-game winning string for McLain, 25-4, whose powerful right arm apparently is beginning to feel the strain of 261 innings' work.

"I had so little I couldn't fit nesses the ball," said the Tigers' ace after being cuffed for nine hits, including Pete Ward's grand slam homer, in the 5-2-3 innings he lasted. "I threw as hard as I have all year in the Boston game (his previous start). Tonight, I couldn't make a pitch."

McLain denied a report he had torn a muscle in his pitching arm, but admitted to a minor muscular irritation. "What I mean by that is it's strained," the 24-year-old fireballer explained. "It's something I've had for two or three years. But I can still pitch every four days."

The doubleheader split increased the Tigers' edge over second-place Baltimore to seven games.

The Orioles bowed to California 7-2 as Rick Clark and Clyde Wright flipped a combined one-hitter. The New York Yankees beat Minnesota 5-0 behind Mel Stottlemyre, Cleveland nipped Boston 2-1 for Sam McDowell and Oakland divided a twin bill with Washington, taking the nightcap 4-3 on Danny Cater's ninth inning homer after a 7-5 loss.

In the National League, Philadelphia ripped St. Louis 8-2; Pittsburgh trounced Cincinnati 8-3; New York drubbed San Francisco 8-0; Houston slugged Los Angeles 8-5 and Chicago edged Atlanta 6-5 in 10 innings.

Hillier, who set a major league mark by striking out the first six batters he faced in Detroit's 2-1, 17-inning victory over Cleveland two weeks ago, nailed his first victory since June 14 by limiting the White Sox to a fifth-inning single by Ron Hansen. The 25-year-old Canadian walked two and struck out seven on the way to his sixth victory in nine decisions.

Gates Brown drove in two runs with a single and his fourth homer and Mickey Stanley delivered a pair with a bases-loaded single.

Shoddy fielding contributed to McLain's demise in the nightcap. Seven of the nine runs off him were unearned, the result of four Detroit errors—two of them by Al Kaline.

Gerry McNertney, McLain's one-time batterymate before Denny was traded from the Chicago organization to Detroit five years ago, drove in four runs with the first three of his four straight hits. Ward cleared the bases in the sixth with his 13th homer, finishing the Detroit star.

Wright pitched 6 1-3 innings of hitless relief after a hit batsman, two walks, Mark Belanger's single and a passed ball by Tom Satriano gave the Orioles two runs off Clark in the third. Jim Fregosi's three-run double capped a five-run California burst in the fourth.

Stottlemyre flipped a four-hitter and Andy Kosco drove in three runs with a single and his 13th homer, leading the Yankees past the Twins.

Stottlemyre, 16-10, permitted only one runner to reach second on the way to his sixth shutout. Jose Cardenal's triple and a pinch single by Russ Snyder in the eighth carried the Indians past Boston, McCowell, 13-10, scattered four hits, including a homer by George Scott, and fanned seven to regain the major league strikeout lead with a total of 229.

Cater broke up the nightcap at Oakland by slamming Bob Humphreys' first delivery in the ninth over the left field fence, Brant Alyea's three-run pinch homer in the eighth had lifted the Senators into a 3-3 deadlock.

Del Unser led off the twilight game with his first homer in the majors, then poked four singles to pace the Senators' 12-hit attack. Mike Epstein homered and Paul Casanova drilled a two-run single for Washington.

Bobcats Hold a Full-Scale Scrimmage

By RALPH ROUNTON
Star Sportswriter

Yesterday was the big day, as the Hope Bobcats donned full pads for the first time in preparations for the 1968 season opener on September 6 at home with Ashdown.

For five days the team labored through strenuous workouts for conditioning purposes, but the coaches already had started introducing various defensive setups and offensive formations. This allowed the squad something to start on when they were able to begin full-scale scrimmaging.

At this time the Cats seem to be coming along well, with somewhat of a surprise in the fact that the line will boast of good depth in addition to whatever winds up in the starting positions.

The competition for the starting spots will be closer in the line, but the backfield seems to be nearly set. Senior Larry Masaneili is the top candidate at quarterback, and he has gained some size from last year. Returning starters man both half-back positions, and both are experienced seniors.

In the wing and slot formations the Bobcats will likely use, powerful Rodney Jones can be depended on for those tough yards. Jerry McWilliams, being lighter and faster, is rooming for the wingback slot. Present plans call for Jim Alford, a big hard-hitting junior, to run from fullback. However, all these are subject to change before the first game.

On defense, the forward eight in Hope's monster defense look tough. The secondary, though, is mostly untested. Tall John Spragins played safety quite a bit last year, but the halfbacks are open. With Coach Bill Lawrence, a former All-AFC defensive halfback, working with the secondary, however, things will very likely even up all right.

Concerning yesterday's practice, Head Coach Ronnie Higgins was pleased with the squad's progress, and noted the high spirit and enthusiasm. He also said that "the drills will continue about three more days before our first scrimmage Friday."

The Cats will work out under the lights of Hammons Stadium for the first time on Tuesday night. Meanwhile, no one has been injured seriously as of yet.

Junior High Coach Gaylord Solomon stated that "about 53" boys had come out for the Bobcats, and they will be practicing daily at 10:00 a.m.

Interests of Sportsmen Considered

MOUNTAIN HOME, Ark. (AP)—Arkansas Game and Fish Commission Director Hugh Hackler said Tuesday that the commission needs a man to do nothing but handle the interest of sportsmen in all planning that endangered wildlife.

Hackler suggested that the commission consider creating the position and including it in the budget which will soon be presented to the Arkansas Legislative Council.

The commission, at a meeting here Tuesday, also authorized the commission's budget committee to make provisions for eight new enforcement supervisors.

This new plan, which could not be made effective until the beginning of the fiscal year on July 1, 1969, would change the present enforcement districts to 14 and provide for greater efficiency. The plan also would permit enforcement division Chief Aubrey Fowler wider latitude in supervisory functions.

The commission also agreed unanimously to take a study of the proposed White River drainage project with a few toward protecting wildlife in the area as much as possible.

This long-running topic was first discussed last year when Commissioner Raymond Farris

TARPAULIN TROUBLE at New York's Yankee Stadium where the capricious canvas rose up and assumed the form of a fearful whalelike sea monster. Rather than resort to harpoons, however, the ground crew waited for the wind to abate and then continued covering the infield.

Golfers Are Warned of PGA Ban

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Golfers joining the new American Professional Golfers organization will be barred from participation in Professional Golfers' Association tournaments, the president of the PGA warned Tuesday night.

Max Elbin told about 70 pros: "You can't belong to two organizations. You either belong to the PGA or forget it" as far as tournament competition goes.

Elbin made his comments at Whitmarsh Valley Country Club, site of Thursday's $100,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic. However, the ruling will not apply for the Philadelphia tourney.

Later this month, Elbin said, the PGA will issue new entry blanks for tournaments. Those refusing to sign the new blanks, which apparently would include a statement saying the golfer did not belong to any other player's organization, would be banned from PGA play, Elbin said.

Formation of the APG was announced Monday in New York by 13 touring pros who identified themselves as the new group's "organizing committee." One of the 13, Frank Beard, said he signed up 70 of the 100 pros present at a meeting Monday night. He said a continuation of the meeting would be held Wednesday night.

Beard explained that the APG plans to operate largely for young pros who must qualify each week to gain a starting place in tournaments.

of Biscoe warned of the danger to the commission's property in East Arkansas through plans to do ditching work on the Cache River.

Commission Chairman Ernest Hogue of Winer said that over the years there had been a chain of circumstances that had brought about the drainage and that efforts to stop it had been futile primarily because it was done on private land.

Fred Bell, warden for Newton County, was presented the Warden of the Year award, at the beginning of the meeting.

MANCHESTER, England—Alan Rudkin, 120 1/2, Britain, outpointed Billy Brown, 119 1/2, San Francisco, 10.

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—Richard Gonzales, 125, Los Angeles, outpointed Tony Alvarado, 129, Pasadena, Calif., 10.

Unheralded Mike Estep, 19, of Dallas, won the applause Sunday by upsetting Ron Holmberg, the No. 6 American seed. Then, 24 hours later, young Sherwood Stewart of Baytown, Tex., came close before losing to second-seeded Clark Graebner in five sets.

Erik Van Dillen, a 17-year-old senior at Burlingame, Calif., High School, took the cue Tuesday and turned in a stunning upset by ousting Charlie Pasarell, crack at boxing greatness. But America's top-ranked player, 6- he does not rule out that one 4, 4-6, 8-10, 6-3, 6-4 in a third round match.

Even Van Dillen was stunned by his victory. He was weak and after the match.

Pasarell, 23-year-old Davis Cup player from Puerto Rico, ducked away quickly to hide his disappointment, but not his by the USLTA, based on 1967 play, Pasarell was seeded third behind Davis Cup teammates Arthur Ashe and Graebner.

Ashe, forced to complete a Davis Cup interzone match against Spain late Monday, got off to a shaky start in his debut. He settled down, however, and defeated England's Chris Bovett 6-0, 6-1, 6-3, 6-3.

He plans to fly to New York later this week to try and arrange a return match with Bob Foster, to whom he lost the light-heavyweight title by a knockout last May 24.

"My mind wasn't on that fight," Tiger said Tuesday. "I was worrying about the war."

He said if he does not get the return match he will fight other contenders until he gets a shot at the title.

"If I get the fight, win or lose I'm going back to down there (Biafra). It's my home. I was born there and I want to die there," he said.

He said he was taking a leave from the army to return to boxing "because it is the business I know."

Regan Is Absolved of Charge

By JOE MOONSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Manager Leo Durocher of the Chicago Cubs and relief ace Phil Regan are satisfied, but National League President Warren Giles might have picked up a king sized headache over the illegal pitch incident.

Giles met with Durocher, Regan and John Holland, vice president of the Cubs, Tuesday and then issued a statement absolving Regan of any wrong doing in Sunday's hassle over illegal pitches.

Umpire Chris Pelekoudas called illegal pitches on Regan during the first game of a doubleheader with Cincinnati. Pelekoudas said he couldn't find any evidence on the ball but he was sure a foreign substance was being used by Regan after seeing the flight of the ball.

"A sinker spins when it breaks," said Pelekoudas. "And a ball with Vaseline on it breaks down without a spin."

Durocher and two other Cubs were thrown out of the game following heated arguments, and Regan had his head, face and the sweat band of his cap wiped off by Umpire Shag Crawford.

The Cubs demanded a hearing.

Giles, in absolving Regan, said "I know Phil and have respect for him and felt a gentleman like he should be shown the consideration and courtesy of hearing him."

"Phil told me he did not have Vaseline or other lubricant on his sweat band and I believe him," said Giles.

"Chris Pelekoudas suspected he did have lubricant of some kind, but told me his judgment of an illegal pitch was based almost entirely on the action on the ball in flight, and seems convinced it acted like a so-called spitball."

"This is a most difficult problem for the umpires and they are being urged on all sides to enforce violators of illegal pitches."

Giles said he would talk to the Crawford umpiring crew when the umpires arrive in Cincinnati later this week. The other members of the crew are Doug Harvey and John Kibler.

Giles said he would confer with them and other umpiring crews as to "how is the best way to handle this perplexing problem—uniformity in enforcement is very desirable."

Giles said he had not talked to the umpires and had not issued any new instructions such as telling the umpires to cease the practice initiated by Pelekoudas of calling illegal pitches because of the flight of the ball. However, it seemed the umpires got the message merely by the presence of Giles in Chicago. Regan worked during the sixth and seventh innings of Tuesday's game and went through his usual motions and pitched as he always has. This time no illegal pitches were called and Crawford was behind the plate.

Day's Homers Give Travs a Victory

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Boots Day walloped two home runs to power Arkansas to a 6-0 victory over Albuquerque in a Texas League game here Tuesday night.

One of Day's blasts was an inside-the-park homer.

Andy Martin won his ninth game of the season for the Travelers, stopping Albuquerque on just three hits.

Martin, who fanned five, tired in the ninth, walking two before retiring the side to preserve the victory.

In another league game, Memphis left-hander Rich Fulkers hurled the Blues to a 2-1 victory over the El Paso Sun Kings. It was Fulkers' 12th victory of the year. He scattered five hits in going the distance. Arkansas 110 020 020—6 10 0 Albuquerque 000 000 000—0 3 0

Not Alert, Says Coach of Packers

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
The world champion Green Bay Packers were looking for the reasons they've lost two consecutive exhibition games after opening the season with a decision over the College All-Stars.

"I don't know what the real answer is, but we have several ideas," rookie coach Phil Bengtson said Tuesday after viewing film of Monday's 10-7 loss to the Chicago Bears.

"We weren't alert," he said. "So far, we've been lacking that spark."

"Our running game hasn't got going yet."

And while he was going over his problems, the man who replaced Vince Lombardi as coach looked ahead to Saturday, when the Packers travel to Dallas to play the Cowboys.

"Oh, boy!" he said. "I guess they've been waiting for us ever since we beat them in the title game."

In Florida, the Miami Dolphins, several of them on the mend from a mild attack of flu, went back to work today in preparation for Friday's exhibition game with Boston.

Coach George Wilson cut the Dolphins' practice to 50 minutes Tuesday when several players, including flanker Howard Twilley and center Tom Goode, said they weren't feeling well.

Barring further illness Wilson said 47 players would make the trip to Jacksonville for the game with Boston.

And it might take an epidemic to ruin their chances. Boston, as usual, has yet to win in two exhibition outings and has a total of only six points to show for games against New Orleans and the New York Jets.

In fact, Boston has pro football's over-all worst record in preseason play, with coach Mike Holovak using those games for experiments with personnel.

Wilson said he expected to use quarterback Kim Hammond for three quarters, with Bob Griese working the final period.

Boston, meanwhile, placed veteran receiver Jim Colclough on injured waivers. Colclough, a 10-year veteran, has been hampered by a bad back.

Patriot rookie John Outlaw, a promising speedster who was seeking a berth as either a running back or defensive back, also was placed on injured waivers. He will undergo knee surgery today and will be lost to the team for about eight weeks.

Their game is one of four scheduled Friday. The others include another National-American Football League matchup, with San Francisco visiting Denver. Baltimore is at Detroit and Buffalo plays Houston at Tulsa, Okla., in the other.

Even Loser Makes Very Fine Showing

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Ismael Laguna, Antonio Amaya and Benny Briscoe were the winners of the three 10-round features at Madison Square Garden Tuesday night.

But today you could also make loser Lloyd Marshall a winner off his fine showing in the windup scrap with Laguna.

Laguna, the flashy, former lightweight champion from Panama, stopped Marshall in 2:49 of the ninth round because of a deep gash over the Newmark, N.J., newcomer's left eye.

Although Laguna was leading 6-2 in rounds on the scorecards of all three officials, the 22-year-old Marshall had Laguna worried until referee Johnny Lo Bianco intervened in the ninth. Laguna had shot over three hard rights to the bleeding wound.

Marshall, a 2-1 underdog making his main event debut in the Garden, staggered his surprised foe with a jolting right to the jaw only seconds after the opening bell had sounded. He jarred Laguna again in the fifth but later in the round the cut opened wide on Marshall's eyebrow.

"I had him in the first round but I let him off the hook," said Marshall. "He boxed his way out of it because I was too anxious and missed."

"He's a good puncher," said Laguna. "He caught me with a good one in the first round."

Laguna, the No. 1 lightweight contender by Ring Magazine and No. 2 by the World Boxing Association, weighed 136 pounds to Marshall's 131 1/2.

"We'd like to use Laguna, Amaya, Briscoe and Marshall again," said matchmaker Teddy Brenner. "They all put on a good show."

That they did for the 9,074 fans, including 500 up from Panama to see Laguna and Amaya, who paid $43,910.

Amaya, making his first start in the U.S., completely outboxed veteran light weight contender Frankie Narvaez in taking a lopsided, unanimous decision.

The 22-year-old youngster, fast as an Olympic sprinter and quick-handed as a juggler, made the 27-year-old Puerto Rican look 10 years older with his dazzling speed. Each weighed 135.

Briscoe, 161, of Philadelphia, kept the pressure on Jose Gonzalez, 161, of New York all the way in gaining the unanimous decision in a fierce fight.

Canadians Win Over Nicaragua

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Conrad Deschesnef became so nervous before Canada's final Little League playoff game last week that he developed stomach cramps and was unable to play.

Deschesnef also was nervous Tuesday, but not enough to stop him from delivering a game-winning single to give Sherbrooke-Lennoxville, Canada, a 1-0 victory over Chinandega, Nicaragua, in the opening game of the Little League world series.

In the second opening-round contest, Richmond, Va., overpowered Terre Haute, Ind., 6-2, in a game called in the sixth inning because of rain. Little League contests are scheduled for seven innings.

Two additional first-round games were scheduled for today with Santa Ana, Calif., opposing Hagerstown, Md., at 2 p.m. and a U.S. Air Force team from Wiesbaden, Germany, taking on Wakayama, Japan, at 5 p.m.

The second game Tuesday featured the power hitting of Richmond left fielder John Mizelle, who socked two homers, and the 12-strike out, three-hit pitching of Roger Miller.

THE DOCTOR SAYS
Vaccine Best Weapon Against Influenza
By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Every fall or winter an outbreak of influenza of varying magnitude occurs. Although the disease is rarely fatal in itself, it is a serious threat because it so often paves the way for a fatal pneumonia, especially in the aged or infirm.

So far, the best weapon against this disease is a vaccine. In order to be effective it must be given well in advance of the anticipated exposure. It must be of the same type as the virus that is expected to strike your community and it must be repeated every year.

The type of virus predominating in any given year is announced by the Public Health Service after study of reports received from all parts of the world. The latest development in preventing influenza is a spray or aerosol vaccine that is easier to take and more effective than the injections formerly given. The vaccine is sprayed directly into the nose or throat and causes fewer and milder side effects than when given by injection.

Q—What is the best treatment for tic douloureux or facial neuralgia? Will the pain gradually cause blindness?
A—I assume this refers to the nerve block produced by injecting the involved nerve with boiling water.

East would be on lead. If he returned the seven, declarer would simply play his eight. If he returned the nine or his remaining honor, declarer would let it ride around to dummy's king and be left with a proven finesse.

Finally, if East should take the 10 with a singleton honor, East would be forced to lead a diamond or a club. This would give declarer a chance to ruff in one hand and discard a losing heart from the other one.

East would be on lead. If he returned the seven, declarer would simply play his eight. If he returned the nine or his remaining honor, declarer would let it ride around to dummy's king and be left with a proven finesse.

Finally, if East should take the 10 with a singleton honor, East would be forced to lead a diamond or a club. This would give declarer a chance to ruff in one hand and discard a losing heart from the other one.

Russia: What It Does Determines American Policy

The illusion some Americans have that they can form international policy to suit their own thinking was shattered Tuesday night when Soviet Russia sent its troops into Czechoslovakia to liquidate a local government that had persisted in its resolve to throw off the yoke of Communist tyranny.

It's a replay, of course, of the record originally cut in the 1950s when Russian tanks rolled into revolting Hungary and shot down resisting patriots.

Except that this time the liberal Czech leaders have declared they wish to avoid bloodshed, urging their countrymen not to fight but let the invading Russians have their way.

Romania's liberal Communist government supports the Czechs, but the geographical position of Poland and East Germany—squarely in the "war corridor" through which every invasion army has attacked Russia in the past—compels these two to side with Moscow.

The Russian move against Czechoslovakia is, of course, a deadly blow against World Communism's prestige and influence. Moscow has made itself indefensible for its allies, friends, and fellow travelers of all countries. Its action first against Hungary and now against the Czechs spells out the fact that Moscow is first for Russia and a very poor second for World Communism.

A likely explanation is that the seeds of nationalism and liberalism sprouting in Romania and Czechoslovakia led Russia to fear that a similar revolt faced Moscow at home—therefore it seemed necessary to put the Czechs in their place as a warning to native Russians who might be "getting ideas."

Bulletins Tuesday night and this morning give credence to this belief, some of the dispatches reporting that Russian "hawks" had thrown out the top civilian chiefs in Moscow.

This is a crisis that has been rising since early July when Russia reacted sharply to the Czechs' new policy of liberalization and independence. Now the showdown is here.

No intelligent American is fatuous enough to believe for one moment that in the face of this world-wide crisis his own personal convictions have any part in formulating American foreign policy.

Our policy is governed entirely by what the Communists do. We kept our mouth shut about Hungary a decade and a half ago. We'll be equally silent about Czechoslovakia today.

The Russians are for Russia—therefore Americans will be for America, and mere words are swiftly hushed before the oncoming crisis of possible bloody action in Europe.

Kennedy Calls for End to Bombing

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., called Wednesday for an unconditional end to the bombing of North Vietnam.

Speaking politically for the first time since the assassination of his brother, U.S. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., Edward Kennedy outlined a four-point program to end the Vietnam War.

The other three points outlined in Kennedy's prepared speech were:

—Negotiate with Hanoi and the military withdrawal from South Vietnam of all foreign forces, both allied and North Vietnamese.

—Accompany the withdrawal with "whatever help we can give to the South Vietnamese in the building of a viable political, economic and legal structure that will not promptly collapse upon our departure."

—Demonstrate to both Hanoi and Saigon the "sincerity of our intentions by significantly decreasing this year the level of our military personnel in the South."

The speech made no suggestion of political endorsement nor did it indicate whether he would attend the Democratic National Convention.

Youthful Tycoon, Dick Pistell Rose From a Seaman to Financier

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Pistell, a big game hunter who looks like a pro football line-backer, at 40 has bulled his way to prominence as one of the more fabulous figures of Wall Street.

At 16 he was an ordinary seaman. At 30 he was a millionaire. Today, as a corporate empire builder, he seems to acquire new firms almost with the ease of a man picking up a dropped penny.

"I read investment reports with the same enjoyment most people get out of novels," he remarked.

The self-made son of a Buffalo finance company owner, Dick became angry after graduating from high school in 1944 and found none of the armed services would take him because of his youth. He promptly joined the Merchant Marine.

"In the next 3½ years I sailed every sea in the world and worked up to purser," he said. "It was one of the greatest things that ever happened to me. You learn about life, see the world, and make your own way."

Back ashore, the bulky youth — Dick is still fast on his feet at 245 pounds — began to set records as a door-to-door insurance salesman. Then he switched to a Manhattan-based underwriting firm and in a few

9 Americans Helicopters Shot Down

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops trying to fight out of an allied cordon shot down nine American helicopters below the demilitarized zone, military spokesmen reported today.

Enemy ground gunners opened up on reconnaissance helicopters, then duelled with allied helicopter gunships called in by the scouting choppers. All of the downed craft were reported recovered, but there was no word on the fate of their crews.

The engagement Tuesday came as troops of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division were closing a cordon around an estimated 100 North Vietnamese troops six miles northeast of the provincial capital of Quang Tri City.

Associated Press Correspondent Robert D. Ohman reported from Da Nang that U.S. troops succeeded in closing the cordon about midnight and sporadic firing continued through today.

Initial reports said 13 North Vietnamese troops and three U.S. cavalrymen were killed, while 45 Americans were wounded.

In earlier fighting along the DMZ, U.S. Marines reported killing 11 enemy soldiers northeast of Con Thien. One American was killed and seven wounded.

Far south in the Mekong Delta, nine more U.S. helicopters were damaged on the ground during a wave of 15 mortar and light ground attacks against allied airfields and provincial and district capitals.

Until today only the delta had been spared from the new intensified fighting that began with enemy attacks Sunday, shattering a two-month lull in the ground war.

The delta attacks, apparently well coordinated, came during a two-hour period before dawn and were described by U.S. headquarters as harassment. Such attacks are common, however, when enemy troops are maneuvering into position for a major assault.

U.S. Strength in Europe at Low Point

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet troop movement into Czechoslovakia comes at a time when the U.S. 7th Army, backbone of West Europe's defense, is at its lowest strength in years.

Because of the balance of payments problem, U.S. Army forces in West Germany have been cut to about 200,000 men and are due to drop even further by Sept. 30.

By contrast, the U.S. Army had about 273,000 soldiers arrayed along the Iron Curtain during the Berlin crisis of 1961. U.S. tactical air strength also has been cut to ease the gold-dollar drain and to beat up U.S. air power elsewhere. The Air Force's tactical fighter strength in West Germany is down to five squadrons.

Because of this—and even more because the United States has about 543,000 men pinned down in the Vietnam war—the last problem U.S. military leaders wish to face at this time is a crisis in Europe.

The attitude of U.S. military men throughout the period of

Hawks Apparently Take Over in Struggle for Power in Soviet Union

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent
In one swift stroke, the Russians have reimposed the cold war, altered the course of politics around the globe and possibly even ignited the long fuse of a major crisis in world communism.

The sudden invasion of Czechoslovakia makes it abundantly clear that Moscow's hawks prevailed over its doves in the Soviet Politburo. This in itself has the elements of a future internal Soviet political crisis.

But much more than that has happened overnight. Moscow has served notice on Communist nations that none can ever hope to escape from the Soviet grip. An official statement said "the fraternal parties"—meaning the Kremlin—"will never allow anyone to drive a wedge between Socialist states, to undermine the foundations of the Socialist system."

The statement is likely to cause some alarm in Romania, whose Communist regime, while adhering to strict party rule internally, has tended to go its own way in foreign and trade affairs. It can even cause some alarm in Yugoslavia whose leaders, along with the Romanians, supported Czechoslovak liberals.

The invasion has severely set back, if not destroyed, hopes in the near future of East-West accord to remove world tensions or to scale down the nuclear weapons race.

It is bound to place American

Fire Destroys Shops at Danville

DANVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The Danville Barber Shop and the Dalton Knight Beauty Shop were destroyed Tuesday in an explosion that also injured five persons.

The two businesses were in a building on the main street of Danville.

P. C. Wiseman, owner of the building, said the explosion apparently occurred after a butane line had been broken by workmen clearing the site of the adjacent Danville Hotel.

Two barbers were hospitalized. They were Jim Hood, 70, of Belleville and Paul Pladger, 67, of Danville.

Y. L. Sims, 42, of Pasadena, Tex., and his two sons, the only customers in the shop at the time, were cut by flying debris, but were released after emergency treatment. The beauty shop was closed.

There will be Pre-School Conferences for teachers Aug. 28 and 29 at 9:00 a.m.

Schedule for Washington Schools

The Washington Public Schools will open for registration August 30. The first full-day of school will be September 3.

All students entering first grade must be six years old on or before October 1. A birth certificate must be presented at the time of registration.

State law requires that all students must have immunization records for smallpox, Polio, Diphtheria, Tetanus, Whooping Cough, and (Rubella) measles. The buses will run the same routes as last year and at the same time.

Johnson, Advisers in Conference

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, denouncing the invasion of Czechoslovakia as tragic and contrived, appealed today to the Soviet Union and other intervening nations to withdraw their troops.

"It is never too late for reason to prevail," Johnson said in a statement he read before news-reel cameras and radio-television microphones.

The chief executive termed the invasion a "flat violation" of the United Nations charter and said the United States was "consulting urgently" with other nations in an effort to "insist upon the charter rights of Czechoslovakia and its people."

He had met with key advisers into the early morning hours after being informed by Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin that Soviet troops were moving into Czechoslovakia.

Johnson began his statement: "The tragic news from Czechoslovakia shocks the conscience of the world. The Soviet Union and its allies have invaded a defenseless country to stamp a resurgence of ordinary human freedom. It is a sad comment

Czechoslovakia Is Invaded by Russian, Other Troops of the Communist Bloc

Serious News, Soviet Action All But Rules Out Democratic Plank to End War

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic critics of the Southeast Asia war were visibly shaken today by the Soviet march into Czechoslovakia, but they hailed a report of widespread public demand for a Vietnam bombing halt.

Minority members of the Platform Committee, seeking to nail in a specific war-ending plank, insisted their hopes are still high.

They took comfort from a report submitted to the committee by a group of congressmen who conducted hearings in various parts of the country during the past few weeks.

Speaking for the congressional group, Rep. Hugh L. Carey of New York said:

"Not one witness advocated either a continuation of our present policy or an escalation

Nixon Counts on Help of His Rivals

By BILL BOYARSKY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon is counting on the campaigning help of his defeated rival for the GOP presidential nomination, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

The GOP standardbearer headed into a meeting today with Rockefeller confident the New York governor will become a full-fledged backer of the Republican ticket.

If he does, it would help Nixon win the support of the more liberal Republicans who backed Rockefeller for the presidential nomination.

Speaking from an auto roof in front of his New York apartment Tuesday night, Nixon told boosters welcoming him home from his first national trip: "Tomorrow, I'm going to meet with the leaders of the party in New York and we expect to get their help."

In addition to conferring with Rockefeller in the apartment building where they both live, Nixon also sought to recruit Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y.

And, he scheduled a session with Republican Sens. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts and Howard Baker of Tennessee.

Nixon told supporters that the week and a half of campaigning and private conferences since his nomination has assured him the campaigning help of Govs. Ronald Reagan of California; James A. Rhodes of Ohio and Raymond Shafer of Pennsylvania.

Reagan also challenged. In addition, he said, Sens. Everett M. Dirksen and Charles L. Percy of Illinois are putting their weight behind the Nixon campaign.

In the past four days, we have made more progress than has ever been made in a political campaign in getting the leaders of the Republican party behind the ticket so we can go after the Democratic vote and the independent vote," Nixon said.

The homecoming wound up a day that began with breakfast at the Ohio State Fair with Rhodes and included a visit to Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, where former President Dwight D. Eisenhower lay gravely ill.

Letters To The Editor

This is your newspaper. Write to it. Address letters to: Editor The Star, P. O. Box 848, Hope, Ark. 71801.

All letters must be signed, with address, so you are identified to the newspaper staff, but if the character of the letter permits we will allow use of a pen-name in the publication, in which case you should add "Citizen," or some other word below your real name and address.

Pen-names are permitted when a letter deals only with issues. Direct attacks upon public officials, however, must bear the writer's name for publication.

Editor The Star: It is with pleasure that I write this letter to the citizens in the community of Hope; and in particular to commend a private businessman of your city.

On July 20, 1968, I, along with my Aunt and two of her children, were traveling by automobile from Texarkana returning to Frankfort, Kentucky. While stopping in Hope for breakfast I experienced car trouble: to wit, my radiator overheating and bursting. Being in a hurry to return home to begin work on Monday, I could not afford to be detained for longer than a couple of hours not to mention possibly having to pay for lodging until the next morning. By chance I obtained help.

Check Speed by Airplane

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Airplane-shaped symbols, painted a mile apart on the open stretches of the state's interstate highways, are used by State Police to determine if a motorist is exceeding the speed limit.

One of two State Troopers in an airplane uses a stop watch to determine how long it takes a motorist to go from one symbol to the next.

"It's just a matter of mathematics," said Jim Wooten, public information officer with the State Police. "There's no radar or anything electrical to work with. The motorist is clocked and the trooper divides the time into the distance covered and he knows his speed."

If a motorist is speeding a trooper on the ground is radioed to stop the vehicle.

"We want the motorist to understand this isn't a trap or something to inconvenience them," Wooten said. "We're trying to save their lives and we would prefer not to have to issue citations for traffic violations."

One airplane is in use now, but two planes will make daily flights once the painting of the symbols is completed.

The name of a radiator repairman from a local Texaco station. This man, a gentleman in every respect, opened his repair shop on that Sunday morning and, in a professional manner, repaired my damaged radiator and had me on the road in less time than I had thought possible.

In my estimation, I was not overcharged or abused in any manner. Mr. Eugene Hunt of Wards Radiator Shop is most definitely an asset to the community. With citizens such as Mr. Hunt your city is indeed worthy of its name. Thank you very much. Sincerely yours,

Sidelights of Democratic Convention

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. George S. McGovern of North Dakota is very much a dark horse in his quest of the Democratic presidential nomination. But he's scored a coup of sorts.

McGovern's headquarters is in the Sheraton-Blackstone hotel, which includes the original "smoke-filled room." It was in that room that the Republican nomination—and eventual election—of Warren G. Harding was engineered in 1920.

CHICAGO (AP) — The "Hubaret" is scheduled to open Saturday.

It's a discotheque in the Conrad Hilton hotel named, obviously, for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey. Members of the Humphrey family and entertainers are to appear daily until the Democratic convention ends—with Humphrey nominated for president, they hope.

CHICAGO (AP) — Should President Johnson visit the Democratic convention, he'll have a hotline to Moscow with him—telephone strike or not.

Robert Dahlke, strike director for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers said his men would install the equipment despite their strike against the Illinois Bell Telephone Co.

Ohio Convicts Carry Out War of Nerves

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State officials and rebellious Ohio Penitentiary convicts carried on a war of nerves today in bargaining the freedom of nine guards against prisoner demands.

The guards, taken hostage in an uprising involving about 300 prisoners at the penitentiary Tuesday, remained unharmed but under a threat of death. The convicts said they would burn the hostages alive, using gasoline and lighter fluid, if officials attempted to use force to free them or do not meet all the prisoners' demands.

"We're at an impasse, a stalemate," Warden Marion J. Kosloski said. "The reason we spend so much time talking to the prisoners is because human lives are at stake."

The guards were held in cells vacated by prisoners.

While the tense situation dragged on, a riot flared up and was swiftly put down at the state's Lebanon Correctional Institution 75 miles southwest of Columbus. Five Lebanon prisoners were shot and some 20 other persons injured after 200 inmates refused to return to cells at the end of a recreation period. Some 600 other prisoners did return to cells.

Three persons were hospitalized with gunshot wounds. The rampage lasted two hours before prisoners were forced into cells and the Lebanon medium security prison was declared secure.

State officials declined to speculate on any relation between the two prison incidents.

National Guardsmen called to Lebanon were sent home without going to the prison, while Columbus guardsmen moved into the Ohio Penitentiary compound shortly after midnight to assist highway patrolmen and prison guards.

Inmates of the 132-year-old prison gained some demands—amnesty for prisoners involved in the disturbance and an investigation of alleged guard brutality—but refused to release the hostages.

Property damage was small at both the penitentiary and the Lebanon institution. Small fires

P. Farina of the city's parking bureau has good news for out-of-town motorists: the city's meter maids will be lenient while the Democrats are in town.

Farina says flagrant violators will be ticketed but that everyone else, particularly motorists with out-of-town plates, "will be given the benefit of the doubt."

at both prisons were quickly extinguished.

Rebelling prisoners at the penitentiary in Columbus included 80 men considered ring leaders in a riot June 24 when prisoners set fires and did other damage at a total loss estimated at $750,000. They had been held in two cell blocks pending completion of a state grand jury investigation of the riot. The penitentiary has 2,500 prisoners. Their cellblocks were opened Tuesday morning after two convicts jumped a guard and took his cell keys.

Budget Hiked, Largest for Baptists

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Executive Board of the Arkansas Baptist State Convention Tuesday approved the convention's largest budget in history.

The $2,687,207 budget for 1969 represents a 6 per cent increase over the current year. The budget, however, must be approved by the convention when it meets here in November.

The budget allocates $883,897 to the Southern Baptist Convention for mission causes and $1,783,310 to institutions, agencies and programs of the state convention.

If the convention approves the budget, Ouachita Baptist University will receive $524,196 and Southern Baptist College at Walnut Ridge will receive $95,788. Another $61,000 is allocated to provide scholarships for ministerial students and their wives at the two colleges.

Other budget items include $116,292 for the Arkansas Baptist Home for Children at Monticello; $316,750 for Missions Division; $127,035 for Religious Education Division; $391,948 for special services; $17,500 subsidy to the Arkansas Baptist News magazine; $54,300 for Woman's Missionary Union and $34,000 for Services Division.

The board also announced the sale of the present Baptist Building in Little Rock to Dan Sprick of Little Rock for $110,000. A new Baptist Building is under construction and should be ready by early fall. The board postponed action on a recommendation calling for the establishment of a separate board for the operation of the Baptist Student Union.

The board also voted to ask Dr. Clyde Hart, who was scheduled to retire at the end of the year, to serve another year to train a director to succeed him as head of the Race Relations Department.

Gerald Cound was elected by the board to become associate to Dr. Tom Logue, BSU director for the state convention. The board also named Atherton

Court Asked to Recall G&F Ruling

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Supreme Court was asked Tuesday to recall its mandate allowing Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller to proceed with his ouster hearing for state Game and Fish Commissioners.

Gene Worsham of Little Rock, attorney of Rogers, a commissioner, sought the recall pending the filing of an appeal from the state court's decision to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Others facing ouster charges of misconduct in office are Raymond Farris of Blasco and Ernest Hogue of Walner.

Farris' hearing is scheduled to start Monday at the state Capitol. No dates have been set for Hogue or Halley.

Halley charged in the motion filed Tuesday that Rockefeller's ouster hearing "violates due process" under the 5th, 6th and 14th Amendments to the U.S. Constitution. He said the violation stems from "vagueness and failure to meet procedural due process."

Meanwhile, Chancellor Kay L. Matthews of Little Rock declined Tuesday to rule on a motion by Farris' attorney Sam Robinson of Little Rock attempting to block the hearing for Farris.

H. W. McMillan of Arkadelphia, Rockefeller's appointed evidence officer in the cases, agreed Monday to provide Robinson the portions of McMillan's report to the governor relating to Hogue and Farris. Robinson also is Hogue's attorney.

Matthews said, in declining to rule on the motion, he found no evidence that the governor had appointed anyone to serve for him during the hearing.

Robinson sought the postponement until Farris is able to attend the hearing or until "the matter has been abated by his death." Farris is being treated for tuberculosis.

"The court is strongly of the view that no hearing date has been set by the constitutional officer invested with the quasi-judicial capacity to hear and determine such matters," Matthews said.

Matthews said he had no evidence before him that the governor had set a date for the hearing. He said the only evidence of a hearing he had seen was a letter from Courtney Crouch of Springdale to Robinson.

Crouch and Heartsill Ragan of Fort Smith were appointed by Rockefeller to serve as a panel on his behalf during the hearing.

Matthews took the position that any hearing date must be set by the governor and not by anyone else. He said the state Supreme Court recently held that Rockefeller could proceed with the ouster hearing, but said the court named Rockefeller as the quasi-judicial official in the proceeding.

Extortion Attempts Investigated

WYNNE, Ark. (AP) — Postal Inspector G. L. Hughes of Little Rock said Tuesday that inspectors are investigating attempts to extort $200 each from six businessmen here through the use of the mails.

Hughes said the businessmen received letters with Wynne postmarks on Aug. 12. He said the letters threatened to start malicious gossip about the men if they did not follow directions of depositing $200 "at a place I will tell you."

Hughes said the letters were typewritten, apparently on the

Two Firms Announce Merger

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Can-transformer Corp., and Colt Industries have announced plans to merge, subject to approval by the boards of directors and stockholders.

Central, with headquarters at Pine Bluff, has production facilities at St. Louis and in Florida and California. The firm claims to be the nation's largest independent producer of transformers.

Colt, which originally specialized in the production of pistols and revolvers, operates nationwide through a complex of subsidiaries, producing electrical generating plants, diesel engines, machine tools, pumps, handguns, rifles and gas turbines.

The merger would be transacted through an exchange of common stock, according to the presidents of the two companies.

Truck, Train Meet, 1 Killed

TRUMANN, Ark. (AP) — John A. Williams, 59, of Trumann, was killed early this morning when his car was struck by a southbound Frisco train at a crossing in the Trumann city limits.

Witnesses said Williams apparently drove off the pavement and his wheels became jammed in the tracks. Authorities said R. E. Davis was the engineer and N. W. Lawson was the conductor of the train. Both are from Thayer, Mo.

same typewriter and basically in the same wording. He said none of the businessmen had received any other instructions.

Two Players Hold Fate of Redskins

By JAMES R. POLK
Associated Press Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sonny Jurgensen, who tossed 508 passes last year in rewriting National Football League records, has yet to throw a single pass in actual play this year.

In those two factors probably lies the fate of the Washington Redskins this fall.

Jurgensen is nursing a rubery right elbow after an operation in May to remove a painful calcium deposit. Despite the cheerful predictions of physicians, the elbow has yet to snap off the sharp passes of the past.

"I don't have any strength yet. And strength is 25 per cent of passing as far as I'm concerned," said Jurgensen, who has been sitting on the sidelines in preseason games.

Coach Otto Graham insisted, "I'll worry about it if the time comes and he can't play."

Graham has been concentrating his worries instead on a weak running game and a leaky pass defense that got much of the blame for last year's mediocre 5-6-3 record. He has traded away half the defensive backfield to try to patch one problem. He is returning Mitchell to running back to try to cure the other.

Mitchell, who has gained almost 8,000 yards on passes during 10 years, was such an explosive runner for Cleveland several seasons ago that he still ranks among the NFL's active rushing leaders. But a similar experiment at halfback last year had lackluster results and was abandoned after six games.

Last year, with Jurgensen setting NFL records with 288 completions for 3,747 yards, the Redskins receivers—Charley Taylor, Jerry Smith and Mitchell—ranked a phenomenal 1-2-4 in the league in catches. But the rushing attack wound up 15th of 16 clubs.

This year Graham has moved Smith, who has great hands but never was a sturdy blocker, from tight end to flanker to replace Mitchell. All-pro Taylor remains at split end. The Redskins picked up Marlin McKeever from Minnesota to fill the vacancy at tight end, although reserve Pat Richter is battling him for the starting spot.

Backing up Jurgensen at quarterback is journeyman Jim Ninoski, a starter in past seasons for Detroit and Cleveland; taxi squad tosser Harry Theofiles, and Heisman Trophy winner Gary Beban from UCLA.

Beban, who the Redskins signed for an estimated $200,000 when the Los Angeles Rams wouldn't pay that price, is slated to be an expensive understudy this year.

Washington used its own top draft choice for rangy cornerback Jim Smith of Oregon and acquired two veteran St. Louis defensive backs, trading for Jim Burson and signing Pat Fischer after he played out his option.

Washington also signed stand-out guard John Wooten of Cleveland after the Browns released him following an alleged racial snub at a golf outing. The Redskins offensive line, built around center Len Hauss, is filled with veterans, as is the defensive line.

While at Six Flags Over Texas this past week-end the Star Newsboys helped to publicize Hope's famous melons. Pictured receiving two (2) melons are Mr. Larry Mayran, Director of Publicity of The Great Southwest Corporation, better known as Six Flags with one of his "Guest Relations" members, Miss Vikki Pike, Arlington, Texas.

A large melon was also given to Mr. Jack Stringer, Manager of the "Sands Motel of Dallas" where the boys occupied the Convention room.

troops on the alert in Korea and elsewhere.

It throws into doubt Soviet plans for an international Communist conference in Moscow in November, where the Russians had hoped to plug up some of the gaping holes in the fabric of what once was considered a monolithic world movement.

It probably will have a heavy impact on the U.S. political campaign. Displays of Soviet military might tend to unify Americans, just as they tend to frighten and unify the allies of the United States.

Moscow has taken what many around the world had discounted as an unthinkable rash step. Various analysts had expected that the Soviet Union would apply all manner of pressure against the reform regime of the Czechoslovak Communist party to halt moves toward liberalization. But invasion had been ruled out as something which would cost the Kremlin far more than it might gain.

Once again, the Kremlin has delivered a severe jolt to Communists outside its orbit. This was a move feared by parties such as those in France and Italy. For them it represents deep crisis. They had been making headway by representing themselves as advocates of legal progress to power. The shock of the Soviet move can be costly to them.

Communist parties have been severely set back in the past by Soviet actions such as the invasion of Finland before World War II, the Nazi-Soviet pact which opened the floodgates of the crushing of the Hungarian revolution in 1956. Each time the recovery process for Communist parties is longer and more difficult.

Internally, the Soviet leadership may have to pay a price. It seems fairly clear that there was tense debate in the ruling Soviet Politburo over what to do about Czechoslovakia, involving hawks who wanted to crush the Czechoslovak movement quickly and doves who preferred the more cautious policy of waiting and applying pressure.

The argument seemed to have left in the middle the top political leaders of the Soviet Union: the party's general secretary, Leonid I. Brezhnev, and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin. Hard-line Stalinists appeared to want immediate surgery to remove what they regarded as a threat in Czechoslovakia to Communist parties throughout the orbit.

Eventually, this can mean a shakeup at the top of the Soviet power structure. The hawks are supported by Soviet generals preoccupied with world power politics.

In Prague the Russians may reinstate Antonin Novotny, the pro-Moscow, Neo-Stalinist who was removed from the party and government leadership early this year when the Czechoslovak reform movement was gathering steam.

Only Soviet arms could reinstate Novotny, who was widely hated and often blamed for the stagnant state of Czechoslovakia's economy.

Brezhnev made a hasty trip to Prague last December in an effort to keep Novotny in his posts as president of the country and boss of the party. He failed.

of state in the Foreign Office. He delivered an oral message for Prime Minister Harold Wilson, who immediately returned to London from a vacation in the Scilly Isles. Wilson called key ministers for a morning meeting and stayed in contact with Washington and other NATO allies.

Philip Kalser, minister at the U.S. Embassy, conferred with Chalfont and other British officials at 4 a.m.

Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart also hurried back from a holiday trip. At Downing Street he told newsmen, "It is very serious news indeed, coming particularly at the time when opportunities for better relations between East and West existed, if there had been the will to make use of them." Wilson made no comment to newsmen.

Sir Alex Douglas-Home, ex-prime minister and spokesman on foreign affairs for the opposition Conservative party, said in a statement: "Russia's crude use of military force has returned the world at one stroke to the atmosphere of the cold war."

In Bonn, West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger and his Cabinet conferred after a night of studying news dispatches and diplomatic reports, then issued a statement condemning the invasion as "a clear violation of Czechoslovak sovereignty and interference in its internal affairs."

Bonn thus broke its long-standing policy of declining comment on the liberalization in Czechoslovakia.

Foreign Minister Willy Brandt and Defense Minister Gerhard Schroeder were on vacation.

Brandt aboard a ship off the Norwegian coast, Schroeder on the North Sea island of Sylt. Both headed for Bonn when the news broke.

At his summer residence in Castel Gandolfo, Italy, Pope Paul VI delivered a prepared address for his last general audience before he was to leave for Colombia. Then he added that he hopes "the dignity of a people jealous of its destiny will not be offended" by the Soviet bloc invasion. He said he hopes "wisdom will prevail over any problem."

Addressing himself to the Czechoslovak people, he said, "This appearance of power cannot but provoke trepidation in our spirit which shares the feeling of your entire nation." He called for avoidance of "conflicts of violence and blood."

Vatican informants said the Pope would proceed on his planned trip to Latin America.

As in Washington and London, Soviet ambassadors made calls to other NATO leaders. In Paris, Ambassador Valerian Zorin called on Bernard Tricot, secretary general of President Charles De Gaulle's Elysee Palace, to inform him of the troop movements.

De Gaulle was quickly alerted, as were Premier Maurice Couve de Murville and Foreign Minister Michel Debre. Couve was in the French Alps on vacation. A government plane was sent to Geneva to pick him up.

There was no immediate reaction from the government or from the French Communist party which has strongly opposed any Soviet pressure on the Czechoslovak reform program.

De Gaulle has been working for more peaceful East-West relations and has been insisting that the Soviet threat to the West has diminished.

Italy's Communist party, largest in the West, has sided with the Czechoslovak liberal wing. Its newspaper L'Unita binned the news and wrote: "The move has provoked emotion and sincere preoccupation in the international and Italian workers' movement."

Mitchell Sharp, Canada's foreign secretary, said the Soviet bloc troop movement could set back progress for East-West understanding but that there did not appear to be an immediate threat to peace.

Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau was on vacation.

James A. Robert, acting general secretary of the NATO council, arranged a morning meeting of the council in Brussels to discuss the situation. Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe held off any move until the council could issue instructions.

MOTHER, ARE YOU READY FOR THE DAY? ORGANIZE!

Back in June, your children's school vacation seemed endless. But here it is many weeks later, and once again the daily newspapers bulge with back-to-school advertising.

Department stores and specialty shops are obviously ready. Are you?

Have you kept your promise that this year, by golly, there wouldn't be any procrastination in preparing your children for the return to the classroom? Do you have a well thought-out shopping list for your youngsters' back-to-school wardrobe? Have you taken an inventory of "school-worthy" clothes? Have you and your children agreed on a date to do all the things that need doing before another school year starts?

Once you've decided on a day, make it something special by planning it carefully—It'll save time, money and nerves. Here are a few suggestions to make it a happy event:

Start the entire family out with a special breakfast treat—this'll give everyone a chance to tell Dad about the big day ahead.

First stop is the family dentist's office for the back-to-schoolers' semi-annual check-ups. If you live in an area where the water supply is fluoridated or your dentist has been prescribing vitamin-fluoride supplements for your children, chances are that little work—perhaps none—needs to be done on their teeth.

The value of fluorides in dental health has been known for more than 25 years, and recent studies indicate that vitamin-fluoride supplements can be as effective as fluoridated water in preventing cavities, and of course, dental bills. This is a most important consideration for those two-thirds of American families who don't have the benefit of fluoridated water. Scientists at Indiana University found that tooth decay was reduced up to 68 percent in children who were given daily doses of a vitamin-fluoride combination. The vitamins in the study were Tri-Vi-Flor drops, Poly-Vi-Flor drops, and Poly-Vi-Flor chewable vitamins.

Fluoride given this way can begin its work long before the first teeth start emerging. Most families find vitamin-fluoride supplements fit easily into their already established daily vitamin habit.

With the visit to the dentist happily out of the way, schedule the shopping trip next. In mid-morning, the stores aren't crowded and the sales clerks can devote sufficient time to helping you find exactly what your children need.

Third on the calendar of events, plan a leisurely lunch in an attractive restaurant. If reservations are advisable make them the day before.

Then, as the highlights of your get-ready-for-school shopping expedition, enjoy a movie together.

First Aid for Back-to-Schoolers

The accident rate among boys is slightly higher than girls, especially when they spend more time outdoors. According to the National Safety Council, the boys suffer more serious injuries than girls. Young ladies, however, experience more frequent scratches, abrasions and minor cuts than their male contemporaries.

Parents are cautioned to remind youngsters that an open wound of any kind is easily subject to infection. The back-to-school season is a most important period to bear this in mind, because games of sport as well as play generally produce a generous share of scrapes, bumps and lumps.

Quick Action
The Pfizer people, who make antibiotic bacitracin ointment, suggest that children be instructed frequently that any open wound, no matter how small, be treated at once to help prevent infection. The risk of infection increases the longer a wound goes untreated. A major offender in this area is usually the adolescent boy, who thinks it is "manly" to dismiss wounds lightly.

Recommended treatment for minor cuts and bruises is to rinse under running water, then apply mild antiseptic or antibiotic ointment, which doesn't sting or stain. Before giving first aid, be sure to wash your own hands thoroughly. And never treat a swollen, or "hot" infection without consulting a physician!

To occupy the least space in a medicine cabinet or car first-aid kit, antibiotic bacitracin ointment is sensibly packaged in a small portable tube. On the counters of all drug stores, it's also a valuable first-aid around the house for burns.

To silence squeaks in shoe soles, and to keep the soles pliable, rub with neatsfoot or linseed oil.

FUN-TIME CLOTHES for a romp outdoors or roughhousing in the playroom match brilliantly colored fun shirts with snug pants. The Bassett-Walker outfits are sparked by bright contrasting stripes at neck and cuffs. This fiber doesn't shrink, stretch, or mat, even after machine washing, because it is made of Creslan acrylic.

CLEANING OUT HER OWN LUNCHBOX... One that harbors odors left over from yesterday's meal can take the edge off tomorrow's appetite. Good freshener, baking soda. Sponge out the lunchbox with a damp sponge sprinkled with dry soda; rinse, wipe dry and leave open until the next meal is packed. To sweeten the vacuum bottle, half fill with water; add a couple of tablespoons of baking soda, give it a good shake, a rinse and store it uncorked.

At Last! Mom Has Time Now to Introduce Tot to Showering

Shower splashing can be both a delightful and educational experience for the constantly curious toddler. An ideal time to introduce a youngster to the shower is when older children go back to school. Mother has more time then, and pre-schoolers have the chance for a new experience to be reported as happily as school-time adventures of older brothers and sisters.

The age at which a child should be introduced to the adventure of showering varies with individual development, and it is often best for the mother to consult with her child's pediatrician.

There are several fascinating ways to get a youngster to respond favorably to that spray of water from "way up there," according to the makers of Dial soap.

The most practical showering device for children is a rubber hose with a shower-head, easily attached to the faucet of the tub. Another easily installed shower-head is flexible and moves up, down and sideways. It's just the thing for "little people" and can be adjusted for adults.

The next step is gently guiding the child into the world of water droplets to be explored again and again. For safety, make sure there's a bathmat on the bottom of the tub. Keep the water at a comfortable temperature, and adjust the nozzle to the finest spray possible. Holding the toddler, start the spray at knee height. Gradually guide it only to the neck of a baby, or above the head if the child's older and finds the feeling pleasant.

Now, start to suds. The more a youngster's lathered, the more likely happy giggles will result. Regular use of an antibacterial soap such as Dial will build up a shield of bacteria-fighting protection on the skin. This soap is also mild and used specifically for babies in many hospitals. To rinse, follow the same showering procedure.

Plastic or rubber toys can also be summoned as a fun way to teach a child cleanliness habits. Girls will usually delight in their "good-little-girl" bathings if their dolls can be washed at the same time.

Little boys will probably want to bring their rubber soldiers and animals with them into the tub where they can shower together.

Fanciful fairy tales and sagas can be woven about the magic dust or tiny little parachuting soldiers coming out of the shower-head, all to the delight of the child.

Introducing showering to a child is a vital step in teaching the soap 'n' water routine, and with a bit of help from Mother it will be fun for the toddler too.

HIGH FASHION IN BOYS' WEAR

Now that the well-dressed Dad is sporting the "country look" in his suits, the well-turned out lad (and his style-conscious Mom) are looking for something similar for Junior.

This stylized, somewhat urbane look goes over just as big in Brooklyn and Minneapolis as it does in Great Shovel, Montana, to say nothing of Kahnawill, Miss.

For boys are turning more and more to fashion (formerly a sissy word), including the belt-loops, the extension waistbands—more than anything, the color element associated with styling '68-69.

Boys are now accustomed to wear the sports suit and the blazer (offshoots from the "country look") and they are expected to take to the longer jackets, the slight shapery, even in twills or tweedy fabrics. This shapery is of course more subtle than in Dad's suit... it suggests rather than define.

Perhaps the most significant development is the stampede of coordinates to enhance this look... for instance:

High fashion dress shirts in medium shades of yellow, blue, green, gold and even gray (how sophisticated can you get?) These shirts have French cuffs and fashion spread collars... a definite departure from the button-downs. No longer will Momma be able to figure out two shirts for Junior. For Junior himself will be demanding a wardrobe of shirts (like his fashionable Dad's).

Budget stand to suffer? Of course, but think of the prestige, the new status on the block!

FIRST-GRADE TOTS NOW READING NEWSPAPERS VIA NEW METHOD OF TEACHING THE ABCs

First grade classes are now learning to read at a speed four times the normal painful process. A new fast-paced program for teaching reading with overhead projectors, a cartoon character and multiple appeals to children's senses has first grade tots reading adult newspapers by the end of their first year.

At the St. Jude School in Mahanomi, near St. Paul, Minnesota, first-graders have developed vocabularies up to 2,000 words compared to the norm of about 600 words, according to their teacher, Sister Rosaria.

"Prior to this program, I would have seriously questioned that the first grade child could achieve such progress in reading," she says. "Our formal curriculum proceeded so quickly that we were finished two months ahead of schedule."

St. Jude's was selected as an evaluation center for the new visual-linguistic reading program developed by the grades one to six.

Prime mover in this speeded-up reading program is a little boy named Alphie, a cartoon figure who represents the age group involved. He's alert, likeable and fun. He's also a first-rate teacher of the alphabet. Sister Rosaria projects him and the letter to be learned on the overhead projector. Alphie is "O" for instance—and taller and thinner for "L".

Once the ground work is laid, the children proceed quickly on to letter combinations and word groups. Again, with the projector, Sister Rosaria introduces the children to word concepts such as "cat". And from rhyming their new word concepts—cat and hat—it is an easy step to sentence learning.

All along the way, the new program provides entertainment for the youngsters.

The projector technique is also used for the two final goals: reading independently and working in their notebooks. Here, the teacher has unusual freedom of instruction. An entire class can now be taught as one group, while the entire class is doing individual work. Facing the class while instructing with the overhead projected visuals, it is easy for Sister Rosaria to spot each student's difficulties and immediately clear them up. She roams around the classroom, peering over shoulders, offering help and checking on each child individually.

The visual transparencies developed by 3M for projection also prove enormous time-savers for the teacher, adds Sister Rosaria. She can pull them out and review as many as 10 lessons in less than 15 minutes. "I found that in my own case, I saved 10 to 12 hours normally spent each weekend in getting ready for the coming five days' work," she reports.

But the greatest advantage to the teacher, Sister Rosaria concludes, is the "freedom to teach" which the new 3M program provides. In other words, it offers the ability to establish rapport with individual pupils, to become familiar with each of their needs on a one-to-one basis.

Individuality Counts

Every woman has her own individual "threshold" of dryness and progresses to it at her own degree of speed. According to the Pacquin hand care experts, even light laundry and cleaning chores are major causes of dry skin on hands, ranking after blustery weather and indoor heating. Did you know that mechanical abrasion of the skin actually occurs when you rub and scrub? Abrasion hurts skin, and dries it out rapidly.

ABOUT YOUR CLOTHES: When you wash out fine woolen hose, add a little gentle soap to the final rinse water to keep them soft and resilient.

Talking Learning Machine, A New Adventure in Fun

"Why can't Mary read?"

This oft-repeated question may at last be destined for oblivion, through the efforts of—imagine—a toymaker!

The world's largest toymaker, in fact, For Mattel, Inc. has just introduced the Talking-Learning Machine, a unique foundation toy for the learning years destined to open up whole new horizons of discovery and delight for pre-school and lower grade children.

This fascinating toy contains 432 different sound tracks of nouns, verbs, adjectives, colors, numbers, music and sounds. Sturdy and colorful, it is battery operated and comes with 36 separate Talking Tiles which actually "speak" three languages—French, Spanish, and English.

It is truly child's-play to operate, for the Talking Tiles may be fed through a hopper or linked together in a "train" which can make whole sentences or just hilarious nonsense.

Six different categories can be selected by just the touch of a lever and these include the aforementioned languages plus "Music," "Question," and "Surprise."

greatest asset in a teacher...

A priceless quality in any endeavor is enthusiasm. Certainly in teaching this quality is most prized.

A prerequisite, of course, is being thoroughly versed in the subject which you want to teach...when you are so versed then you can "forget" the hard-core facts and let your natural enthusiasm carry you forward in your goals.

Refuse to consider it as a "chore" or a duty that has been forced upon you. It is a happy privilege—a golden opportunity. So refuse to complain or to apologize for being a teacher. Be glad and proud of this privilege you have.

Prepare the lesson thoroughly so you know you have a grip on it. Then you will find it has a grip on you, such that it will be the most important thing for your class during the lesson period.

STRAIGHT STATE

Talking-Learning Machine. One is "My Book" for use by the child which explains and illustrates how to work the toy and also includes a coloring-book section with figures identical to those on many of the Talking Tiles. The other is a Parents' Guide Book, which in addition to a more sophisticated description of this durable toy, offers instructions for many learning games that parent or siblings may want to play.

note to teachers

Teach with such personal enthusiasm that you will truly regret the shortage of time to go more deeply into the subject.

Receive each lesson as a personal challenge to you as a teacher to get your class to receive and live it in the days ahead with enthusiasm.

Personal enthusiasm is highly contagious. The teacher's enthusiasm will be caught by the pupils. Their new enthusiasm will not only hold them gladly to the class, the school and to you, the teacher, but it will also attract and hold others... a marvelous cycle.

IT'S "SCHOOL" TIME for preschoolers in their own play and learn center. Toys like new Play Chips, play-tested and recommended for preschoolers 1 to 3 years old; they encourage the toddler's fascination for basic shapes, for counting, taking out and putting back, stacking and unstacking. Color recognition, shape discrimination, counting and motor control are the learning-while-playing values of the new toy, which also encourages tidiness.

PLAY-&-LEARN CENTER FOR PRE-SCHOOLERS

When older children go back to school, it's time for the toddler to attend his "school," his own Play and Learn Center.

This creative environment — where he may keep his playthings, where he may tear things down or build them — is crucial to his growth. Play-school Research advises that a child's adult characteristics are determined during his first five years of life, that he reaches one-half his general intelligence by the time he is four years old and that an improved environment can increase his intelligence by as much as 20 points.

The Play and Learn Center can be a small area in the home but it must belong to the preschooler, a place where he will feel "at home." The toys with which he plays are critically important. Good toys are playthings selected with care, geared to the child and his age, interests and stage of development.

Here are some important criteria for the selection of toys for the preschooler suggested:

1. Durability — The toys must be sturdy, soundly constructed and made from durable materials.
2. Safety — Paints should be non-toxic and all edges and surfaces should be finished well. For safety reasons, electrically-operated toys are not suitable for the preschooler.
3. Construction and Design — The well-designed toy should work, so that it is not frustrating but challenging for the child. The construction of the toy should be simple enough for the child to understand.
4. Play Values — Toys should give free rein to the child's creative play. They should not be confining to his imagination.
5. Size — Toys should be portable so the child can move and carry them but the toys themselves, and their parts, should be large enough so that small hands can work them.
6. Variety — His playthings should encourage the full development of all his senses. He should be able to exercise his skills, muscles, emotions and imagination. Be sure that the toys you select are pacing your child's own rate of growth.

Fall, when school is in session and the household settles back to a regular schedule, is a good time to arrange a Play and Learn Center for the preschooler. He'll spend happy hours there, learning while playing.

UPDATING DATA DOWN- ON-THE-FARM

A revolutionary new course in data processing is now available to rural schools which three years ago had neither time, money, nor manpower to teach a computer class, 3M Company officials announced.

"The one semester course, 'Introduction to Data Processing,' costs little money since no actual computers or specialized teachers are needed," says W. Hass, company data processing manager, said.

Hass designed the computer class at the 3M Company, St. Paul, Minnesota. The course is developed especially for rural schools. Prior to this breakthrough, only urban schools could afford to rent computers and pay special teachers for automation courses.

"Introduction to Data Processing" is aimed at high school seniors. The class familiarizes students with jobs computers do, as well as employment opportunities available in the field.

Class material includes 250 detailed colored, overhead projection transparencies. These transparencies substitute for the actual computers in illustrating data processing.

When projected on a screen, the transparencies magnify the actual size of computer parts and systems. This enlargement of the machinery enables students to see parts of the equipment which might be hidden from view in the actual computer.

Recently, a small high school in Fairmont, Minnesota—population 12,000—became the first rural school to test the data processing course. This decision was made after Hass presented a course outline to the school principal, superintendent of schools, and board

MEN, BOYS CAN SNIFF A FASHION TREND

Nowadays, it seems that even age 13 isn't too young for a boy to start a fragrance habit.

Retailers across the nation, who feel the boom buying market for male scents, report that in the rural towns as well as the big towns, today's boys prefer to smell good!

In college towns, an additional fragrant fact is cited. Many men's colognes are selling faster than women's. It appears that men can sniff a fashion trend, especially when it gets them behind the ears.

Scents News

As a back-to-school gift, fragrances for men are now as essential to a student's wardrobe as sweaters and long necklaces, according to fashion experts of Pfizer's Leeming Division. As producers of a particularly virile fragrance for young males, called Hai Karate, they have just made a new chop into the male world of scent. They have originated a new green fragrance, fresh but Far Eastern in mood, named Hai Karate Oriental Lime. But don't drink it — even though every bottle is said to contain a splash of real lime.

The Hai Karate people, who pack every one of their colognes and aftershaves with self-defense instructions for men against attacks by women, have another instructive recommendation for men: The etiquette, or proper use, of men's fragrances.

Did you know that a man should apply his after-shave lotion or cologne with only his left hand — even if he is a Southpaw? Otherwise, when he shakes hands with another person, he will leave scent on the other person's hand. Although men's scents are generally lighter and less clinging than women's, no good fragrance can be removed by washing. Therefore, use the left only.

Men, especially young men, say researchers, "have become very sophisticated about scents in the past few years, and are often more discriminating in what they will use than the ladies."

of education in the area.

Since no provisions had been made previously for the class prior to this winter, it was incorporated into a "Related Office Procedures" course. Instructor Michael J. Huggett integrated about one-third of the new material into the curriculum, first, "to take the mystery out of data processing," "to show students how their future work might be affected by data processing."

Reaction to the course at Fairmont Senior High School has been enthusiastic. The class has been incorporated into the school's 1968-69 curriculum as a separate course.

Instructor Huggett emphasized after teaching the course: "The class is organized in such a way that an instructor without previous experience in the data processing field can present the material with confidence."

C. H. Hegdal, Fairmont Senior High School principal, praised the course for exposing students to one of the fastest growing fields in the U. S. He said it is a high school's responsibility to prepare students with skills they need not only today, but in the '70's, '80's, and '90's.

"Education systems must be alert to the changing needs of society, and gear its curriculum to anticipate this need," Hegdal said. "This data processing class is doing exactly that."

Hegdal also praised the 3M program for developing an

The Antique Look Is New — Notably In Watches

Back in 1510, a young German inventor named Peter Henlein got tired of hearing his friends say, "Clock it to me, Pete," and put some springs and cogwheels together to make the world's first watch. Henlein's pocket watch... more appropriately pocket clock... was about two inches in diameter, an inch thick, and had only one hand to mark the hour.

Henlein's first watch was to be sure a fine invention, but it was so big and loud that people carrying it looked and sounded like London's famous Big Ben.

Today, watches can be purchased in extremely small sizes and one has to listen very carefully to hear them tick. But the current fad among school- and college-age people is that they want to go back into the past, especially in wearing apparel and accessory items like watches.

The youngsters of today are once again saying, "Clock it to me," and this is exactly what the Waltham Watch Company of Chicago is doing with its pendant watches. Although not as large or noisy as the old ones, the company's selection does include many styles that harken back to the past in styling.

For example, "La Grande Mode" (trans. The Big Fashion) is an antique-inspired hunting case pendant watch with a hinged cover. With an ornate face, Roman numerals, and a seventeen-jewel movement, the watch is versatile enough for wearing at everything from "Be Ins" to class proms and retails for forty-two dollars, including the matching chain.

Also in the line is the "Florence," which has a richly carved cameo front, antique-styled watch back, seventeen jewel movement plus a knotted chain. The "Florence" is another watch that could be worn by both flower children and debutantes. It retails for forty-five dollars.

Both watches are watchmaker crafted and have a lifetime guarantee which means they could be heirlooms themselves some day.

Son 'Forever' Borrowing from Father? Solution Here!

"Hey, Dad, can I borrow this tie? (these cufflinks?) (your shaver?) (the car?)"

Today, in homes across the country, there exists a very curious facet of every father-son relationship which finds its basis in "borrowing." Remember Junior's last date — the one when he borrowed Dad's raincoat and umbrella? That's what we mean.

Because most sons rely so heavily on borrowing from Dad, by the time they're ready for college a sweeping shopping tour is in order — not only to ensure that all borrowed goods are returned to their rightful owner, but to provide Junior with some personal essentials before he goes off on his own.

The task of shopping for these essentials usually falls to Mom, probably because she has the most time for it (or so Son thinks). But since so many of the items a son will need are male-oriented, it might be a good idea if Father went along on one of the shopping trips. After all, who's in a better position to judge his son's preferences than the guy who's been borrowed from all these years?

For example, take a shaver. Can you see Mother trying to select one of those? It can even be difficult for the men in the family.

Fortunately for all concerned, however, there is one shaver on the market, the Remington 300 Selecto, which was expressly designed to overcome this shopping problem. This shaver, which has a Selecto dial that adjusts shaving heads to four positions, was designed to suit every combination of skin and beard. It also has a dial position for a pop-up sideburn trimmer to help keep great shape.

Of course, not all items are as easy to shop for as this shaver. So, before shopping for a college-bound youngster, it might be a good idea if Dad began by sitting down with his offspring and considering all the items that have been borrowed. Excellent shopping list!

important "course" for rural schools. "The geographic location of a student or site of a school," Hegdal said, "must not be allowed to interfere with a student's capacity to compete in the world when school is out."

VERSATILE
SEPARATES

It is said that 70% of American women have dry skin the year round. One thing sure, by the end of summer we all have it. Interference with the skin's natural plan of self-renewal goes on the year round from exposure to wind, smoke, soot, dust, etc. — but the added exposure to the sun in the good old summertime takes a further toll of the skin's moisture and natural oils. The play of emotions on the face and the nervous strain of modern living also play a part.

Consider, then, the aloe vera plant, which blooms in the desert itself and somehow has learned to store up great reserves of moisture. Wouldn't you like to have THAT beauty secret?

The Desert Flower people have devised an utterly delightful skin-care plan to relieve this universal dilemma. It combines the legendary gel of the aloe vera plant with proteins, modern emollients, and humectants to produce the simplest, most effective of beauty routines.

The basic steps to skin beauty are thorough cleansing, stimulation of circulation near the surface of the skin, and compensation for the constant evaporation of moisture and inadequate supply of natural oils.

Aloe Vera Skin Cleanser is a light, fluffy cream, containing pure aloe vera gel; it is water dispersible. Mixes so completely with makeup and dirt that rinsing actually purges the pore openings.

Circulation is encouraged by a skin toner, a stimulating complexion aid with a built-in plus that helps to maintain the skin's own healthy beauty balance.

Consultants report that compensation for moisture loss and an inadequate supply of natural oils is made up to you by the moisture base and night cream products. The moisture base is fluffy, greaseless, and bathes the skin with moisture which is said to absorb instantly making an excellent base for makeup. The night cream is also enriched with avocado oil and is reportedly good for even a sensitive skin.

The leisurely days of summer vacation are rapidly drawing to a close and the busy ones of school are about to begin. Perhaps your last remaining days are taken up with replenishing your wardrobe, but let's not stop there. Take a close look at the condition of your hair. Your outfit may be perfectly coordinated but if your hair doesn't look well the dress is unimportant.

Summer sun, wind, and salt water can make your hair dull and lifeless. Here are a few hints to restore summer damaged hair to its natural beauty. Wash hair twice a week with a good dry hair shampoo to replace lost oils. Follow this up with a conditioning treatment to add softness and manageability. A firm brushing every day with the proper brush will help bring out the highlights. Who said 100 strokes a day are old fashioned?

These treatments are fine when you have the time, but what if you are in a hurry — a short notice date or a forgotten party. Maybe a weekend away from home. Well, happily with the help of a handy hair dryer you still have time to wash your hair, condition it and get to your party on time. Give your hair the tender loving care you apply to your wardrobe and certainly the results will be eye-catching.

PERSONAL GROOMING: A good way to get the most stubborn dirt from under fingernails is to scrub them with dry baking soda on a wet brush. When using a regular razor, you'll get a closer shave by cutting across the beard with diagonal strokes. Best time to shave (unless in a hurry) is an hour or more after getting up. Face puffiness, after sleep, retards getting a good shave.

GUARD YOUR HEALTH.

First antismoke ordinance in the United States, was passed by Chicago's city council in 1881, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

HERE'S REFRESHMENT! Campus queen enjoys a water-dispersible skin cleanser made with the famed gel of the aloe vera plant. The aloe vera has this extraordinary gift of storing up moisture blooming in the very desert. If only your skin had the same talent! By end of summer your skin screams for moisture. For quick refreshment, to restore lost moisture, the new Desert Flower Aloe Vera creams are recommended.

The children are back at school, and soon grade school youngsters will be bringing back home their cherished finger paintings and construction paper collages. Instead of letting these important expressions of your children's art accumulate in drawer or attic, why not start an ongoing family art gallery?

The Picture and Frame Institute suggests that a wide array of inexpensive frames with glass may be selected from variety and department stores. Traditional or sharp, clean, modern frames, for example, could be used to blend with the interior decor of the house. Or, simple frames in unfinished wood could be painted, in bright primary colors to complement the vivid "purple people" and "tangerine trees" that kindergartners and first graders bring home with delight.

Each member of the family, even Mom and Dad if they're creative, can display their art. Throughout the school year, the gallery could rotate with new works being substituted for old. If the child brings home several pieces of art, let him decide which will go into the gallery for that week.

Where will the family gallery be displayed? On almost any wall where it will proudly be noticed often by all members of the family and by visitors, suggests the Institute. The kitchen, back hall, or family room would be very fitting. For a gallery of this nature, PFI advises hanging the pictures in relation to the height of the appropriate child. He'll want to make sure he can view his own art eye to eye.

No matter what the medium, art is one of the most important methods of developing and bringing out self-expression — an experience so necessary for children. Parents can stimulate this development in their children by proudly putting their art on display in the "framed family art gallery." As the children grow older, the frames can be used to preserve the most meaningful pieces of art.

Because the women of today are more fashion-minded than ever before, trends are being set at a record-breaking pace. It is proving difficult for most women to keep up with the IN of the fashion market, but rest assured, there's enough variety in designing so women of all tastes can still maintain a fashionable wardrobe for the '68 Fall season.

Designers for a leading separates manufacturer are saying this about color: "Togetherness is back and mix-and-match is bigger than ever." Red, white, black and blue have been predicted as the dominate colors for Fall, but brown has stirred new interest and is definitely in the race for the coming season.

"Cholive" is an important IN word this year... a blend of charcoal gray and olive green... smashing with accents in plaids of wine-and-gold or turquoise-and-moss.

Expressing Individuality Can Calm Adolescent Rebelliousness

One of the reasons youngsters go through a rather difficult, rebellious period during adolescence is that they are not allowed to express their individuality, according to many psychologists.

The youth of today have learned that they can think for themselves, and they don't want to have their every action and thought dictated to them by their parents. As they grow older, they want to feel more independent and every new school year makes this feeling even more apparent.

There's no denying the need for parental guidance, but there are some things mothers and fathers can — and should — let their offspring do for themselves.

Take the youngster's room, for example. Here's an area of the home that they would like to consider their own little private domain, but, in most cases, the teenager's room is decorated just like the rest of the home — that is, the way the parents want it to be decorated.

A relatively inexpensive way to let them show their individuality is to let them select their own room's wallcovering.

History is generally divided into three periods—ancient, medieval and modern.

Whether on campus or off, cyclists should know and observe these basic traffic regulations:

1. Obey red and green traffic lights, one-way street signs, stop signs.
2. Keep to the right and ride in a straight line, single-file.

3. Have white light in front, state-approved reflector behind. Know local safety ordinances.
4. Have satisfactory signalling device to warn of approach.
5. Give pedestrians on campus the right-of-way; avoid using sidewalks and stay off the grass.
6. Look out for cars pulling into traffic and sudden opening of car doors.

Laundry On Public View? Be Sure It Measures Up! Use This Household Helper

School's opening is your cue to brush up on your laundry techniques. During the summer you can cheat a little... what matters a stain or two on play wear or socks that aren't quite white. But now, the clothes your children wear to class will be testifying to the type of laundress you are, so put your best foot forward.

Here's a word of advice on how best to contend with stains, your major wash-day problem. With grade-schoolers' clothes, most of the stains come from food. With teens, particularly boys, it may be grass stains from sliding into first, or grease stains from after-school tinkering with a hot rod. In most cases you'll have better luck with a soak than one of the prescribed antidotes, which are always tricky at best. Let the origin of the stain, if you can guess it, determine the temperature of the water. It's cold water for blood, meat juices and egg; hot water for light dye stains, scorch, mustard, perspiration and grease. For those you can't identify, use tepid water. Add three tablespoons of washing soda in every case to loosen the stains and limit the soak to twenty minutes so that freed dirt can't reestablish itself in the fibers. Then wash as usual, adding three more tablespoons of washing soda and less detergent than you're accustomed to use since the soda softens the water. This treatment should completely erase the stains; but if a shadow of one persists, try another wash cycle. That's still easier than fussing with antidotes.

Just because jeans, the mainstay of most school wardrobes, don't show dirt and stains as readily as other clothes, they don't get washed as often. Consequently when they do get washed, there's more dirt to get rid of. Here again you can add a lot of extra muscle power to your detergent by combining it with six table-spoons of washing soda.

ABOUT YOUR CLOTHES:

When using cleaning fluid on a fabric, use a clean cloth to dry the outside edges of the damp portion vigorously. This can avoid a "ring"... When you hang a raincoat up to drip-dry, stuff the pockets with tissue paper to facilitate the drying of the inside corners... If you have a soft tweed or homespun suit — the neighborhood tailor can easily line the knees of the trousers to keep them from getting baggy.

Remember, too, many of the wash and cure ideas you use to give new life to last year's school clothing can also help keep new wardrobes looking new longer. Spray sizing is particularly helpful in retaining the finish.

Thin Skinned

The driest parts of the body are usually the hands, tops of the feet, the back of the heels, and elbows. These areas should all be cared for regularly with rich hand cream or lotion and bath oil.

EVEN JEANS eventually have to get laundered. The mainstay of most school wardrobes, they don't show dirt and stains readily... but when the moment of truth arrives, they'll need the extra muscle power that washing soda supplies. Moroccan-inspired djellaba makes great cover-all for doing chores.

THEY'RE NEVER TOO YOUNG FOR PROFESSIONAL PORTRAITS THAT PRESERVE HAPPY HOURS

IN FOCUS FOR SCHOOL... The pert young lady above is starting the school year with a portrait photograph. This photo will record her entry into a new class with, perhaps, new friends and a new teacher. Her black-and-white striped dress, black stockings and patent leather shoes, indicate she (or her mother) is aware of Fall, 1968 fashion trends.

"Back - To - School!" These are three magic words that start a new program for children who have become bored with summertime activities, exciting as they may have been for two vacation months.

Football replaces camping and hiking. Swimming and diving give way to roller skating. The "picnic hamper" becomes the school lunchbox. School, itself, in 1968, has changed many of its own routines. Kindergarten children are younger and younger; closed-circuit television augments the blackboard in some classrooms. Spelling may be learned on the typewriter; arithmetic by computer methods.

Despite accelerated courses and speed of learning, certain sentimental school customs remain. The high school Year Book and its predictions of a student's future, the class ring, the proms and the basketball game get-togethers — are still part of the current school scene.

The class photograph, an integral part of the sentimental memories of school, is still important, too. Added to this once-a-year picture are many other photographs taken at school today to serve as memory milestones later in life.

The extended school photography program has become so popular with parents that most portrait photographers have added this work to their general studio photography. They offer family plan prices that help families with many children in school to get pictures of them all economically.

The school photography program begins with the first year at school and goes on to Graduation Day. And, of course, most of these pictures are in color.

In fact, the first day "back-to-school" usually offers many picture possibilities. The child reporting to school for the first time is a fine subject for a picture to be treasured by the family for years to come.

Group portraits of the school football team are popular, too. The school glee-club and other groups all may be recorded by the professional photographer who comes to the school on a regular schedule.

At some schools, a special day is set aside for the visit of the photographer. Children are scheduled to come at specific times, lighting is standardized and the sittings are brief. In this way, classes are not interrupted and procedures are orderly and quick.

Another occasion most parents seem to like to preserve in a color portrait is the child's first appearance, in costume, in a school play or pageant. Sometimes the parent is so keen about this event in her child's life, that she wants more pictures than are provided at school. She can then go to the photographer's studio for additional photographs.

Elementary school years are so full of appealing activities and "firsts" for the pupil, that mothers eagerly await the "next photography day" from month-to-month. They understand that one is never too young to pose for a portrait!

PREPARE NOW FOR A CAREER IN MEDICINE... YOU'RE NEEDED!

Considering careers? One profession that desperately wants qualified young men and women is medicine. It is estimated that by 1975, almost three million people will be needed in the health occupations.

how to choose grooming aids

Are you thinking of good grooming aids for his back-to-school gift? If so, here's some advice on picking and choosing them.

Be consistent. Don't give an after-shave lotion with a lime scent, a cologne with a wood scent and a soap that smells like leather. Mixing fragrances can either cancel them all out or leave a man smelling like fresh asparagus. Stick to one scent for coordinated aroma.

Basically a man should have the scent of cleanliness — the implication that he is a vigorous male animal who has just scrubbed himself. Scandinavian scents excel in creating this manly impression.

If you give him an after-shave, remember it is not supposed to be a long-lasting fragrance. Don't expect him to smell handsome the rest of the day. An after-shave is a bracer designed to tone up the skin and act as a mild astringent for razor nicks.

By all means get him a good cologne with a clean crisp fragrance, but watch it, because this very important item can be a source of confusion. It is often sold with a shaving lotion and smells the same. Actually, it is a different product. Men's colognes, advises the Kanon Institute of Good Grooming, are meant to have a longer-lasting scent. They are meant to be sloshed over the shoulders and chest. Of course, many men like to use cologne in place of after-shave for the longer-lasting aroma on the face.

Finally, look for man-sized, man-shaped bottles, faceted for easy grabbing and with a cap that can be turned by a husky male fist. Some in Swedish design are made of natural materials — wood, glass and metals.

In addition to humanitarian values and financial rewards, medical careers offer the constant challenge of new directions and discoveries. Exciting opportunities abound, not only in medical practice and nursing, but also in medical research, space medicine, teaching, public health and foreign service.

My Son, the Doctor

Sons — and daughters — who want to become doctors should start in high school. First, investigate college pre-medical programs and gear studies to their basic requirements. These usually include four years of English, three years of laboratory science (biology, chemistry, physics), three years of math (algebra and geometry, plus trigonometry, if possible), two to four years of a foreign language, two to three years of social studies (sociology, history, economics, political science). Extra-curricular activities are important, too, since it's essential that a physician have a broad understanding of others and enjoy communicating with them.

For young women, the high school years are also the time to master sewing, cooking and housekeeping skills, before the busy college, medical and nursing school and work years begin.

During College Years

Doctors-to-be need three to four years of liberal arts study at a college or university that is accredited for later entrance into medical school. (Most school libraries and guidance counselors have listings of accredited colleges.)

The majority of students who qualify for medical school maintain a "B" average or better in college, and rate higher on character, personality and aptitude. College courses of study include biology, chemistry and physics, as well as the humanities and social sciences. It is also helpful, in the second or third year of college, to take the Medical College Admission Test, which measures a student's intellectual potential and adaptability. The test is given each spring and fall in every state, and is evaluated by the same committees that later review college transcripts.

Financial Assistance

More than ever before, private agencies, the federal government and public-spirited companies are providing financial aid to deserving students who want to enter the medical profession. This assistance is available in the form of scholarships, grants, and study now, pay later student loan programs. One program, inaugurated by Pfizer Laboratories, makes $1,000 yearly scholarship awards available to each of the country's 98 medical schools. Donated to the schools without restriction, they are awarded to outstanding students at the discretion of deans or faculty committees and are based on achievement, financial need, or both.

My Daughter, the Nurse

Careers in nursing now have a brand-new look. Higher pay, better training and more attractive living and working conditions all contribute to make the nursing profession more rewarding than ever. And, by the way, nursing has the highest marriage rate of any of the professions!

Girls who are interested should start in high school by taking college preparatory courses. Future Nurses clubs and hospital volunteer aide work are also valuable in determining aptitude and interest.

After achieving a high school diploma, there are three ways to become a registered nurse: four years of college, leading to a bachelor's degree; three years of hospital school, leading to a nursing diploma; or two years in a junior or community college, leading to an associate degree. Once a girl has her R.N., she can work in a hospital, on private duty, in a doctor's office, the armed forces, research, teaching, or school and public health.

be sure your jewelry — and you, get rave notices

When school bells ring, school belles will be collecting their fads and fancies to make a grand back-to-school entrance. Jewelry gets top billing among such worldly-wise collectors as the teen miss and the sophisticated college gal. They know how to give their favorite hobby verve and flair. The secret is a wardrobe of jewelry that takes them effortlessly from classroom to social affairs to special date events. The Jewelry Industry Council presents these exciting ideas for all those lucky gals on their way back-to-school this year.

Earrings are still absolute feminine necessities. Tiny studs are so discreetly fashionable for all her hours, from the scholarly to the sportive and the social. But of course she likes to change. And the changes made are to button styles and demure dangles in karat gold, gold filled and semi-precious stones such as jade and coral.

Pins provide her with lots of fashion action. There are the brightly enameled animals that cluster in dainty groups, the ever popular disc pins personalized with her monogram, the gold filled and stone set fancy pins for her fashion fancy.

And nothing is more important than her back-to-school watch. Every busy minute gets fashion timing, either by the big and boldly colorful look strapped to her wrist, the varied and feminine pendant watch that swings from a chain at her throat or the smaller, jewel-studded dress watch that she wears to time those all-important occasions.

Bracelets offer gleaming eye appeal as she groups bangles for instant charm. Chains, too, are much in the picture for every back-to-school gal, and she can satisfy her every charming whim in karat gold, gold filled or sterling motifs.

For those particular times when a girl wants to look her best, she turns immediately to her best jewelry. A strand of cultured pearls, tiny pearl button or teardrop earrings and romantically delectable cameo pendant and earrings are what she'll wear. Fine gold chains and ensembles set with semi-precious gems are more stand-outs for an evening that is meant to stand out in her memories.

Rings reign supreme for the fashionable back-to-school miss: from simple gold bands to elaborate costume rings and the classical favorites, rings set with cultured pearls, her birthstone and the popular Linde star.

Naturally, for her school days, jewelry with her school emblem has winning appeal: lapel pins, charms and rings that proudly identify her alma mater make her back-to-school jewelry wardrobe the complete!

TOP HONORS for campus coordinators this fall will go to the girl who matches shirts with shades and adds a touch of leather too. Selected for success, a woolen shirt with a mandarin collar topped with a leather, sheepskin-lined vest and tortoise-lens shades

Campus "In" Fashion: Match Shades to Shirts and Blouses, Look Sharp!

If you don't take to tees, root for "rushing" or plump for "pledging" but still seek a little extra social cachet on campus, we've got the answer.

This fall Foster Grant invites all collegiates to join the "Shirt and Shades" sorority.

Qualifications are simple — any girl with an eye for fashion is in.

All the "Shirt and Shades" sorority requires is that a girl have a shirt and a pair of shades to match any occasion. It's the newest look in coordinates, suits all sizes and is easy on fragile funds too.

Sunglasses have long ceased to be just something to put on when the sun comes out. Now they're year 'round fashion and for Fall, '68 the world's largest manufacturer of sunglasses has some great orb-flatterers.

Choose from shiny-framed "Eyesicles" with their hint of tint lenses in palest pink or fragile blue or the Skinnies in slim squared or round shapes. Add a little spice to your wardrobe with the range that includes Ginger, Tarragon, Paprika and Cinnamon — squared off and rounded in a galaxy of gorgeous tones from coolest tortoise to hot-shot orange. There's a shade to suit every shirt.

For the final, feminine touch above a frilly Elvira Madigan blouse, try the slimmest translucent shades from the Skinnies collection.

Heading for Bryn Mawr, Mount Holyoke, Vassar or Radcliffe? Then just turn to the Foster Grant collegiate collection — where you'll find some sporty shapes named after your alma mater.

SCHOOL BUS SAFETY TIPS

As the nation's students return to school, it is important that every young school bus-riding realizes he must be responsible for his own safety and that of others on the bus.

According to "Safety On Our School Bus," a film produced for classroom use by Encyclopaedia Britannica Films, Inc., youngsters should be taught these good safety practices:

- Line up in an orderly manner and board the bus in single file; fill back seats first;
- Be sure aisles are clear so nobody will stumble;
- Stay in your seat while the bus is moving;
- Don't put anything (including your head or hands) out of the window;
- Don't play with the emergency door;
- Don't talk to the driver while the bus is moving;
- Ride quietly without scuffling or horseplay.

Instant Hair Fashion

The curly look is now an instant hair fashion, thanks to curlytop wigs and hairpieces. The most revolutionary is the synthetic wig in a new denier that duplicates the look and feel of hair. These curly wigs will hold up in fog and wet weather, and can be crushed in a suitcase or washed like a piece of lingerie, hung up to dry and worn again without the need of a restyling.

Creamed Cologne Lasts

If you find that the scent of the cologne you use vanishes too quickly, try the same fragrance in a solid or cream version. The alcohol that is contained in most perfumes tends to evaporate and with it the fragrance while the consistency of a cream retains it much longer.

mom, be a smart clothes strategist... plan ahead!

Anticipation of a new school year may herald excitement for youngsters. But for Mom, it means a rigorous schedule of washing, ironing and shopping to perk up wardrobes and back-to-school needs.

This year, make things easy on yourself. Begin your back-to-school preparations early. And engage the help of your troops. You'll be amazed at the interest they will show in helping you when they know they can have a hand in back-to-school preparations.

Plan a back-to-school wardrobe strategy session before any shopping is done. Let each child go through his or her school wardrobe from last year and make up three groups of clothing. Everything that can be worn just as it is goes into the first group. The items that simply must be discarded make up the second group. And the third group is for all the clothing that can be worn with some attention right now.

It is this last group that makes an early start important. You'll be surprised how many items from last year can be perked up "good as new" with a few ingenious wash and care tricks.

After washing, prepare for ironing by separating clothes into fabric categories. This makes it easy to begin with fabrics requiring a cool iron and working up to fabrics requiring a warmer iron.

Use spray sizing to help speed your ironing and give new life to all washable fabrics. Magic spray sizing is a recent scientific compound designed to restore the like-new look and feel to all washables. It can be used on either damp or dry fabrics. Because it can be used as a sprinkling agent, the time normally spent dampening clothes is saved.

Here are some fine points of detail ironing:

Hems — Generally press hems harder on the outside fold and lighter on the stitching, to prevent puckering. For the "unpressed hem look" tap the iron lightly over both the outside edge and stitches, being careful not to make a crease.

Lace — Iron it face down on soft pad or towel. Work like large ruffles, a few inches at a time, edges first, ironing with a circular motion. Then press the nose of the iron into the fabric. Remember to hold the lace taut and not to iron over the gathers. Spray sizing can perk up lace prettily.

Buttons — Lightly nose the iron around the button, being careful not to make contact. This is especially true of buttons made of synthetic materials that might melt or scorch.

Buttonholes — Press the lips of the buttonhole together and run the iron over the joined fabric.

Bows or Small Buttons — Place face down on thick soft pad. Iron on reverse side, keeping the material taut.
